Stop Locomotive
His Last Run
Personality in Names
Tommy, Jock, Bobby

—By Arthur Brisbane—

CHICAGO, ILL., June 30—Today you will read the Democratic platform and get the impression that Democrats, like yourself, really know what is the matter with the country. They lay all our troubles to mistakes that Republicans have made SINCE the war. Angels probably know that our troubles are due to the mistake that the human race made when it STARTED that war.

Also, in this writer's opinion, you will soon be reading that Governor Roosevelt, of New York, is the presidential candidate of the Democratic party.

The "Stop Roosevelt" campaign suggests the young bull that got on the track with a "stop locomotive" program.

Everybody sympathized with the bull.

Conventions, parties and candidates do not interfere with our great modern industry, bootlegging. Prohibition may go, and bootlegging probably with it, but it hasn't gone yet. George Brooks, 39 years old, of 162 Kenilworth ave., Calumet City, ran out of his home across his lawn, he was shot down in the usual way. He was only a small alcohol peddler, poaching, perhaps, on some other "alky peddler's" territory.

His wife, Dolly, aged 23, was putting their four-year-old daughter, Bonnie, to bed when the killing was done.

Mrs. Corinne M. Ward sends from Parma, Idaho, "with compliments and prayers," a prohibition pamphlet called "Prohibition Facts, Questions, Answers." The pamphlet says:

"Prohibition did immediately and sharply reduce crime."

Mrs. Dolly Brooks and her daughter, Bonnie, probably question that statement. The pamphlet further states:

"Prohibition did practically eliminate the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks."

"Prohibition did immediately bring an era of unprecedented national prosperity."

The platforms of both political parties question those statements.

Reporters are always tempted to write about personalities, knowing that human beings are interested in their kind, remembering Bacon's "Nihil humeni me alienum puto," but at a national convention you feel like Sinbad the Sailor in the valley of diamonds. There are so many personality diamonds you can hardly decide which one to pick up. As interesting a human picture as any is presented by Bernard Baruch, standing up in the restaurant, talking with profound solemnity to "Alice," who is not solemn at all.

It is not necessary to add that "Alice," in our language, always means Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

Certain first names, in our social system, belong to certain individuals.

If you don't know, for instance, that "Tommy" always means Tommy Hitchcock, Jr.; that "Jock" means young Mr. Whitney, and that "Bobbie" is a synonym for Goelet, you might as well go back to the small town that you came from as far as any social progress goes.

Bernard M. Baruch, who used to tell Woodrow Wilson what to do and how to do it in a financial way, could act well in a charade presenting La Fontaine's "Le Chene et Le Roseau." He would be the oak, "Alice" the Roseau.

The hardest political worker here is Jesse I. Straus, one of three young New York brothers that understand whatever they undertake. Jesse I. is here in the interest of Governor Roosevelt, working as steadily and quietly as the mainspring of a good watch.

The writer has known him since he was a small boy listening to his mother, Mrs. Isidor Straus, read good books aloud, and still wonders at the efficient, frictionless functioning of that family.

If you have friends that hoard money, even taking it out of savings banks, tell them the sad story of John Lasko, of Chicago. Then draw a moral.

Mr. Lasko decided that a savings bank was no place for his $1000, so he took it out. Then he met a lady named Anna, who suggested that "a round of drinks in her flat in South Bishop st. wouldn't do him any harm, if he didn't swallow them."

In mistaken conviviality he did swallow "the round," and now he tells the police that the headache seems to be just at the top of his forehead. The thousand dollars he has no longer.

Chicago has been having some trouble with small banks and the fact has been advertised. The difficulty has been in the ease with which a little bank could start. Two hundred and fifty bankers in one place will hang up their shingles like two hundred and fifty young law-

SENATE AGREES ON RED CROSS AID PLAN

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The Senate today agreed to a conference report on a resolution for distribution to the needy, through the Red Cross, of 45,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton from the Farm Board stocks.

GASTON B. MEANS AID INDICTED IN FRAUD

Washington, June 30 (AP)—Norman T. Whitaker, alleged "fox" in the Lindbergh baby ransom fraud for which Gaston B. Means was convicted, was indicted today by the District of Columbia grand jury on a charge of conspiracy. Whitaker is under arrest in New York and will be returned here tomorrow under $100,000 bonds.

HOUSE APPROVES TREASURY P. O. BILL

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The House today approved the conference report on the $1,056,247,833 treasury-postoffice supply bill for the fiscal year beginning at midnight.

SLASH IN BONUS LOAN RATE

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House a bill reducing from 4½ to 3 per cent the rate of interest on loans to veterans on World War adjusted service certificates.

The bill also provides that loans may be made immediately after issuance of the certificates, instead of waiting two years as now provided.

Senator Norris (R.) Neb., sponsored the interest reduction, and Senator Copeland (D.) N. Y. the other feature. They agreed to combine the two measures and they were passed as one.

Five Women Hurt in Belmont Crash

As the result of an auto collision, last night at School and Common sts., Belmont, five women were hurt. Mrs. Mary Smiley, 63, of Trowbridge st., Cambridge, was driving a car that was in collision with a machine operated by James Smith of Highland st., Arlington.

With Mrs. Smiley was Miss Blanche Burnham, 60, of the same address as Mrs. Smiley, and Mrs. Gertrude Bassett of Cedar lane, Boston.

MALDEN WOMAN SLAIN FOR CASH

Apparently the victim of a brutal murder, Mrs. Nellie O'Connell, 41, was found today on the bed in her attic room in Holden st., Malden.

Both eyes were blackened, her nose broken and her limbs and body covered with bruises.

Malden and state officers advanced the theory that she was fatally beaten by burglars in search of money which she was said to have secreted in her room.

She is said to have amassed a small fortune by frugal living and thrift. She was separated from her husband, Frank O'Connell, who is understood to live in Melrose but he occasionally visited her, police said. A sister, Mrs. Mable Fitzpatrick, also lives in Melrose.

Ten Girls and Men Near Death as Flames Sweep Building; Masked Firemen Fight Fire

With a terrific roar from exploding film, a flood of flame filled the Hollywood Films Corp. building on Piedmont st. near the theater district this afternoon, then darted in a wall of fire into the street, spreading excitement through the district.

The men and girls, partly stunned by the blast, escaped from the building with flames licking about them, while scores of others poured from surrounding structures.

The flames shot against the Boston Consolidated Gas Company building, across the street, seared the wall five stories high in some places and leaped through windows shattered by the explosion.

LOSS IS $100,000.

The cause of the explosion is believed to have been a short circuit in electric wiring which ignited films stored in a vault on the second floor, open at the time.

Damage was estimated at $50,000 in the Hollywood Films Corporation building, with about $5000 more in the gas company structure.

FIREMEN HUNT BODIES

When firemen reached the scene, Piedmont st. was filled with flames, and gas company emergency crews were pouring water from hose lines from the windows of that building.

Ruse to Free Curtis Fails; Lindy Confession Read

Flemington, N. J., June 30—Defense counsel today moved for a directed verdict of mistrial of John Hughes Curtis of Norfolk, Va., charged with misleading the investigators of the Lindbergh baby kidnapers. The motion was made on the ground that the prosecution was quoted in a local newspaper as having said that "Curtis is as good as convicted already."

The motion was denied.

Basis for the defense motion was contained in the Hunterdon County Democrat, a weekly newspaper. A paragraph of the story read:

"Difference of opinion between state witnesses as to the good faith and reliability of Curtis' clues is not material to his guilt or innocence, the prosecution contends, voicing an aside opinion that Curtis is as good as convicted already."

CONFESSION READ

Capt. John J. Lamb of the New Jersey State police was recalled to resume reading a statement made public by state police as the first of the so-called "confessions" of Curtis that his story of having made contact with the kidnapers was a hoax.

The statement went on to tell the way in which Curtis said the kidnapers told him they stole the baby.

It quoted the kidnapers as telling Curtis on one occasion that the baby was "all right, except it won't pay attention when called."

LINDY NURSE CALM

During frequent mention of the murdered baby Col. Lindbergh kept his head bowed over his writing and the face of Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, remained impassive after one startled look of apparent indignation.

Under examination by Harry Stout, legal veteran whom the defense tried to have ousted before the trial opened, Lamb told of Curtis picking a picture from the Newark, N. J. rogues' gallery as that of "John" of the kidnap band. The subject of the picture, he said, was found to be an inmate of an insane asylum.

Stout interrogated Lamb as to treatment of Curtis after the baby was found.

"CURTIS TREATED WELL"

"Was Curtis allowed to go to bed when he asked?" he inquired.

"He was granted that privilege," Lamb replied. "He only expressed a desire once."

"Was he disturbed?"

"Not to my knowledge."

Under cross-examination by Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel, Lamb said detectives assigned to investigate Curtis' statement were interrupted in following leads.

Curtis said in the statement that the kidnapers had planned the kidnaping 35 to 45 days in advance, that they entered the nursery by a ladder, took the baby from its crib, went downstairs and were let out of the house by a member of the household.

"They had inside help," Curtis reported he had been told.

N. Y. GOVERNOR PUT IN NOMINATION BY OLD FRIEND J. E. MACK

1—Having defeated a "straddle" plank on prohibition by the great vote of 934 3-4 to 213 3-4, the convention today rejected a plank calling for payment of the war veterans' bonus and another for bimetalism.

2—Next on the program was debate of proposed platform amendments, one by William G. McAdoo for guarantee of deposits in Federal Reserve banks and others for immediate payment of war veterans' bonus, rechartering of the "Scotch" system of banks, and other economic proposals by Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma.

3—The platform complete is expected to be adopted by 4 o'clock (Boston time). Then nominating speeches for the presidency will be in order. There will be ten of these, for Gov. Roosevelt, Speaker John N. Garner, Al Smith, Gov. Ritchie, Ex-Gov. Byrd of Virginia, Gov. White of Ohio, Gov. Murray of Oklahoma, Ex-Sen. James A. Reed of Missouri, and Melvin O. Traylor of Chicago.

4—It is hoped to have the first roll call tomorrow and wind up the convention by nominating a vice-presidential candidate. Talk for second place centers largely around the names of Garner and Ritchie.

5—On the first presidential ballot the forecast is Roosevelt will have 654 votes of the necessary two thirds, 770. Smith 118, Garner 90, Ritchie 16, White 52, James A. Reed 36, and other favorite sons trailing along. Roosevelt backers hope for inroads on Missouri's 36 and Ohio's 52 as well as Garner's 90 from Texas and California. There are cracks, however, in Roosevelt's own claimed delegations from Mississippi, Iowa, Colorado, North Carolina and Indiana. Other Roosevelt hopes are to Tammany's New York support and some from the 50 votes controlled by Mayor Cermak of Chicago.

Chicago, June 30 (INS)—Voting on the presidential nomination will not begin until tomorrow under the plans arranged today by the convention leaders with Senator Thomas J. Walsh, chairman, before the fifth session opened at 12:30 p. m. (1:30 Boston time).

After disposing of the balance of the minority reports on the platform and then adopting it, nominating speeches were in order today.

These will run for approximately six hours. A night session will be held to clean up all the speeches.

Whoever gets the nomination, whether it be Roosevelt or any of the favorite sons or dark horses, is going to run on a platform so dripping wet prohibition cannot be otherwise than the uppermost issue of the campaign.

The decisive vote virtually ended the convention's prohibition wars.

Roosevelt's floor lieutenants were all over the place just before Chairman Walsh's gavel fell for today's session, conferring, button-holing, cajoling.

The invocation was by George Shaw Cook, Christian Scientist, leading in reciting the Lord's Prayer.

PLATFORM WEAK IN SOME SPOTS, SAYS BRISBANE

PARTY WOBBLES ON PLANK CONCERNING WORLD COURT

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Convention Hall, Chicago, June 30—For lack of political activity the convention management entertained Wednesday afternoon's crowd with what Mr. Connolly of Universal Service and International News called "a vaudeville show."

Arthur Brisbane

Distinguished ladies and gentlemen were called to the platform to sing or talk. Clarence Darrow, great criminal lawyer, spoke in the deep earnest voice that has made many a murderer ask himself "Did I really do it? The way he talks I guess I didn't, I must have been dreaming."

Will Rogers philosophized, his school a cross between Epictetus and Epicurus. Amos 'n' Andy were loudly applauded, although in real life they are not black.

Gene Tunney, was cheered by all young Americans in the hall and by the old as well. He has wisdom, knew enough to stop at the top and to change slightly the words of his favorite poet, he cracks a wallop at his back."

Politicians and other distinguished individuals came and bowed politely by request. They included Max D. Steuer, who knows the inside of a jury's mind better than Copernicus knew the solar system.

As Clarence Darrow rescues the criminal that has slain one, Steuer rescues the corporation that has slain 10,000.

Eddie Dowling entertained, a lady sang, a quartet sang.

Senator Walsh, permanent chairman, good naturedly supervised the improvised vaudeville a little puzzled. It was as Damon Runyon observed, "the first time Senator Walsh ever presided over a night club."

After the entertainment, well worth the price that spectators paid for their seats, a patriotic tune was played, everybody was sent home, told to return at 7 in the evening.

HARK! THE LADY YEOMEN

As the crowd poured onto the sidewalk it encountered entertainment far superior to the "Inside Show." The Yeoman Band of Oklahoma," was passing, making the welkin ring and carrying signs "For Alfalfa Bill of Oklahoma." You will be surprised to learn that the "yeomen" were young Oklahoma ladies, playing every known instrument, wearing patent leather slippers with heels not too high for street wear.

They had beautiful uniforms, and were so thin and wiry you could have put any one inside the umbrella stand in your front hall.

The tambour major kept her shoulders back and lifted her knees high, throwing her stick 20 feet into the air. She has an Oklahoma eagle's eye and as for the little lady carrying the drum, she has as heavy as herself and twice as big. She was too wonderful for this planet. She leaned on God, understanding the laws of leverage, and did the impossible. With the club in her right hand she hit the LEFT side of the drum, and with the left hand club she hit the right-hand side of the drum.

When you were little you saw some fine lady who could play the piano passing the left hand up over her right and playing top notes with it.

"Alfalfa Bill's" bass drum lady is quite remarkable at that. All in a row, some drumming, some fifing, some blowing the horn so beautiful, they marched out of sight, but will never march out of memory.

BILL STUART'S BEAT

That is all about the first session of the convention's third day, but it is not the real news. That was contributed by William H. Stuart, political writer for W. R. Hearst's Chicago American, who scored a complete "beat" on the full text of the Democratic platform and printed it for convention visitors, all Chicago and a majority of delegates to see it for the first time.

There are two kinds of concrete work, one made of cement with only sand and gravel mixed in it, the other "REINFORCED" with bars of steel. The reinforced kind has real strength, carries weight and endures.

Reinforcement is lacking here and there in the Democratic platform.

It has one conspicuous merit. It is the shortest platform Democratic or Republican, in the memory of man.

Short as it is, more than half the people will fail to read it through. That is how we take our politics.

It wobbles on adherence to the World Court, which is the League of Nations plan, Democrats talking about adhering "with the pending reservations." Our Supreme Court is no longer good enough for either party.

There is talk of regulating banks and regulating stock.

BEER FOR CHRISTMAS?

Governor Roosevelt sent word to his representatives here not to interfere with delegates in their discussion of prohibition, and that plank may arouse hope for beer and light wine in time for Christmas.

The platform demands "reduction of armaments." It would have done better to declare for United States armament sufficient to make it a matter of indifference to us, what other nations might do.

The platform says our "unprecedented economic and social distress" has been caused by "policies pursued by our government since the World War." That government, you know, has been entirely Republican since the war.

Democrats seem not to suspect that the war itself, the 20,000,000 men, spending two hundred and fifty billion dollars, may have had something to do with our troubles

WICKED REPUBLICANS

Democrats discover that Republicans have ruined our foreign trade, encouraged monopolists, and all our economic troubles are caused by Republican foolishness, wickedness and corruption SINCE THE WAR. You wonder why all the other nations in the world had the good sense to avoid them. They had no Republican party to ruin them.

The platform recommends and promises good things.

It promises to cut expenses.

It recommends insurance against misery and sorrow in old age, and against unemployment.

It would help agriculture, but

Garner Leads for Second Place

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—A flood of vice-presidential candidates were being put forward today by various delegations, with sentiment crystallizing on Speaker John N. Garner.

Gov. George White of Ohio ranked second choice, ex-Gov. Byrd of Virginia third and Melvin C. Traylor of Chicago fourth, with other delegations hard booming Gov. Dern of Utah, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Representative John McDuffie of Alabama, Gov. Harry H. Woodring of Kansas and Gov. Ritchie of Maryland.

Women Rallied to Wet Banner

New York, June 30 (INS)—Women favoring repeal of prohibition, especially if they are residents of dry communities, will be listed through a canvass undertaken today by the newly formed women's committee of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

It was hoped to enlist 250,000 more women in the organization would not let government meddle with farming. The Farmers government meddles decidedly and French farmers get $1.50 a bushel for wheat while North Dakota farmers get 30 cents.

BEWARE FALSE ECONOMY

The platform declared for "an army and navy adequate for national defense" but shivers at the thought of "an expenditure fast approaching a billion dollars annually."

When we were caught unprepared in the other war, it cost us ten billion dollars right away, and ten billions a year right along. That is what we call a "false economy." As a matter of fact, however, the RIGHT KIND OF DEFENSE IN THE AIR AND UNDER THE WATER would cost little and make the world fear and respect us.

But it is not what delegates say or write in a platform before election that counts.

It is what the candidate does after election.

ROOSEVELT "MAN OF HOUR"

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—Nominating Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency today, his old friend, John E. Mack, told the Democratic convention the New Yorker filled the "crying need for a practical American with a clear perspective and a knowledge of the entire nation as our chief executive."

Mack is the man who persuaded Roosevelt to run for his first public office more than 20 years ago.

Mack said Roosevelt "comes to this convention with the greatest number of states behind him in the history of the Democratic party the North, the East, the South and the West — the great Central States of the midwest unite."

"DEFEATS OPPOSITION"

He said Roosevelt had captured the "heretofore impregnable enemy stronghold of upstate New York, the territory which in all the history of the Democratic party never gave its gubernatorial candidate a majority."

"Why this sudden change in the votes of upstate New York?" Mack asked. "It was brought about in the first place, because he insisted on knowing his own state first. He knew every public institution and county in the state, every public institution and county in the state knew him.

"It was a repetition of his record as assistant secretary of the navy when because of his characteristic thoroughness, he knew every port of this country and every port, likewise, knew him."

"GETS THINGS DONE"

A marked characteristic of the man he advocated for the presidency, Mack said, was his ability to get things done through knowing his subject.

He instanced Roosevelt's delving into the subject of marketing farm produce, which resulted in a measure that "protected the farm from rapacious and dishonest middlemen."

He cited Roosevelt's success as a business executive and his record as assistant secretary of the navy and as of governor of New York.

"He has put into effect more savings and brought about such efficient administration that the credit of the state of New York is on a higher basis than that of the federal government," Mack asserted.

"KNOWS STATES' NEEDS"

"He has first hand information of the demands and needs of every state in the Union because he has been in every one of them.

"Gentlemen of the convention, our party presents to the country no claim for immediate relief from all our present ills.

"We make no reiteration of the glowing and unfilled promises of our opposing candidates of four years ago but a statement of plans of recovery within 24 hours from the depression which exists, but to promise an earnest, sincere and determined effort under the leadership of a man whose courage is unquestioned and whose word is as good as gold to so conduct our United States by policies as to bring a recovery from the illy accentuated and increased by Republican uncertainty and instability."

Parisians Hail Law

Paris, June 30—Suburbs of Paris have hailed with enthusiasm the law passed by the Chamber just before adjournment, tightening building restrictions.

All Roosevelt, Says Watson

"Roosevelt not later than the second ballot."

This was the prediction made from Chicago by mail today by former City Councilor James A. ("Jerry") Watson, who was generous with postcards to his friends at City Hall.

From City Councilor Thomas H. Green of Charlestown came this message:

"Everything points our way."

Green, like Watson, is in Chicago to cheer for the New York Governor.

EXPRESS KILLS WOMAN DRIVER

While returning home after leaving her sick 4-year-old son with relatives, Mrs. Nancy Murphy Barnard, 29, of North Scituate, was instantly killed today when her car was struck by the crack Cape express, at the Egypt station crossing.

The car was in the center of the tracks when the express bound from Duxbury to Boston, struck it and hurled it 80 feet, strewing parts all along the line.

Mrs. Barnard was thrown from the car and was dead when her body was found alongside the tracks.

Horrified commuters on the station platform witnessed the accident. The express was delayed for half an hour and its passengers transferred to a local.

Medical Examiner Thomas Alexander viewed the body, and police and railroad officials began an investigation.

According to Mrs. Margaret M. Murphy, mother of the victim and postmistress at Minot, Mrs. Barnard had left early to take her son, Richard, suffering from whooping cough, to the home of a relative at Peaked Hill.

She was returning over the Lawson rd., when she failed to notice the crossing warnings.

antee bank deposits in banks of the Federal Reserve System.

McAdoo said his plank had been defeated by a vote of only 27 to 22 in the resolutions committee.

"In view of the conditions in the country I felt it was imperative for us to announce clearly whether it shall be the policy of this party to declare for the safety of men and women who are compelled to place their money in banks.

"And unless the custodians of those funds under our banking system are so organized that they can impress people with their safety then the very foundation of our banking system are shaken."

SEN. GLASS SPEAKS

Reserving a part of his time for a concluding argument, McAdoo yielded the floor to Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, also a treasury secretary under Wilson and one of the authors of the law creating the reserve system, to speak against the plank.

McAdoo, replying, said there was no man he more respected than Glass, "but when I hear him say we should not do that because it will arouse the opposition of powerful interests, he isn't talking democracy."

Action on these remaining questions and final adoption of the platform was all that remained on the calendar ahead of the long succession of nominating speeches, expected to keep the Stadium resounding until late afternoon and, perhaps, well into the night.

Nine nominating speeches, limited to 20 minutes each, and an uncounted number of shorter seconding speeches were on the list.

The nominators are John E. Mack of Syracuse for Gov. Roosevelt; Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts for former Gov. Smith; Senator Tom Connally of Texas for Speaker Garner; Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland for Gov. Ritchie; Henry S. Johnston of Perry, Okla., for Gov. Murray; Senator Carter Glass of Virginia for former Gov. Harry F. Byrd; former Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio for Gov. George White, and Sam Fordyce of St. Louis for former Senator James A. Reed.

The name of Melvin Traylor of Chicago also was to be presented, but the nominator was unannounced.

It was the opinion of some observers that a break to Roosevelt that would put him over, would occur on the third ballot.

Roosevelt will have on the first ballot approximately 650 votes, give or take 20 either way, according to the managers' estimates. James A. Farley, the field marshal of his forces, thinks he will have 690. One other estimate was 670 or 680.

No man in a Democratic national convention has ever got that close on the first ballot without getting it. But it requires 770 votes of the convention's 1154 to nominate under the two-thirds rule, a rule which the Roosevelt managers so hastily embraced when facing defeat, should the shrewd it.

SCURRYING FOR VOTES

In quest of those outstanding 80 votes, or 12% depending upon whether the Roosevelt or Farley Roosevelt figures are accepted, the Roosevelt managers were proselytizing in the delegations of all the favorite sons and potential dark horses.

They are understood to have offered the Vice-Presidency to Speaker John N. Garner in exchange for his bloc of 90 delegates from Texas and California. They were likewise reported to be flirting with Gov. Albert C. Ritchie for his support.

A movement to nominate Alvin M. Owsley of Dallas, Tex., former American Legion national commander, for vice-president was started by Alpha H. Wilson, New York alternate delegate in the pro-Roosevelt faction. Owsley, a former attorney general of Texas, practices law at Dallas.

Ritchie probably has more second-choice support than any other candidate in the convention if Roosevelt is stopped short of the two-thirds mark, but Ritchie will be forced to seek another candidate capable of commanding it.

A majority from Missouri is ready to switch to Ritchie on the third ballot, four of the delegates said today.

"The entire delegation is pledged to our favorite son, former Senator James A. Reed, on the first ballot" one of the leaders said. "On the second ballot, 20 to 25 will go for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, but I believe Gov. Ritchie will be Missouri's choice on the third ballot."

THREATS TO ROOSEVELT

Every favorite son has the idea that if the New York Governor is not nominated within three or four ballots he will not be nominated at all, that his own delegates will begin to drop away from him after that stage has been reached, and that it then becomes an open fight in which the lightning is liable to strike him.

The dickering already going on is nothing to that if Roosevelt is not nominated early in the game.

The Roosevelt managers are now too sure of some of their own strength once two or three ballots have been taken.

In fact, the Ritchie people claim they have assured strength in 16 of the Roosevelt delegations on the third ballot and thereafter For strategical reasons they refrain from naming the states.

MISSISSIPPI A UNIT

The anti-Roosevelt allies were not letting their rivals do all the raiding, either. Cracks are apparent in the Iowa, Colorado, North Carolina and Indiana delegations, all of which have been considered, with the exception of Indiana, more or less solid for Roosevelt.

One other state where trouble was feared for the Roosevelt slate is Mississippi. At noon today the delegation announced this state's 20 votes would be cast for him under the unit rule, on the first ballot. The vote was 10½ to 9½ to support the New York governor on the first ballot and a poll of the delegation to determine whom to give their vote on the second.

The decision came just as James A. Farley, Roosevelt manager, was estimating his candidate would get 705 votes on the first ballot or 15 votes higher than he estimate yesterday.

Farley said Indiana would deliver him 22 votes and that Virginia was wavering.

Farley said the selection of a running mate had not been considered and would not be "until after Governor Roosevelt is nominated."

The Roosevelt leaders are trying the favorite son first line-up belonging to the governor's own state of New York for help. To do that means to turn to John F. Curry, the Tammany leader, to Mayor James J. Walker, whose fate now rests in the governor's hands, and to Al Smith, from whom they can expect little.

They would like, if possible, to obtain the governor's nomination without the help of Tammany, and to that end they are also dickering with Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, who has a considerable bloc of 50 delegates that are going to Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago banker, unless other arrangements are made before the balloting begins.

While a continuous round of nomination conferences kept the leaders busy, the delegates seemed to be more occupied with thoughts of prohibition as they were called together again as in the stadium.

WALSH WINS REPEAL

The slide toward repeal began late yesterday, when the platform committee voted unexpectedly, 30 to 17, to substitute instead of that a plank originally prepared by the Roosevelt men, proposing only that the question of repeal be submitted for whatever action the states might care to take.

Many of the Roosevelt members of the committee voted for the substitution, after the Governor's generalissimo, James A. Farley, had declared he would keep hands off.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, was the author of the repeal plank, and it was he who led the floor fight for it at the night session. But it was Smith who received the loudest and longest applause from the convention and its 20,000 guests, pitching every corner of the great hall.

OVATION FOR RITCHIE

They roared their approval, too, in repeated bursts of enthusiasm, for Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Maryland's favorite son, argued for a repeal he has been advocating ever since the amendment was adopted, and they gave freely of applause to nearly a dozen others who supported the amendment.

The temper and intention of the convention was plainly apparent in the vastly different reception given those who argued for the submission plank.

Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, a former chairman of the national committee, led the battle, with W. C. Fitts of Alabama his lieutenant. They were interrupted repeatedly by boos and shouts of protest.

Democrats Hail Hearst Writers

Chicago, June 30—The Democratic convention paid honor yesterday to the writers covering the convention for the Hearst newspapers.

Eight of them, headed by Arthur Brisbane, famous columnist and editorial writer, were cheered as Eddie Dowling introduced them to the delegates during the recess while awaiting for the platform report.

Besides Brisbane, those honored were Damon Runyon, Claude G. Bowers, Will Rogers, Floyd Gibbons, Gene Tunney, Ruth Bryan Owen and Fr. Charles E. Coughlin.

Alabama Yields to Roosevelt Man

Chicago, June 30—Alabama, No. 5 in the roll-call, was to yield its place today to John F. Mack for Franklin D. Roosevelt's nominating speech, but how to say so proved a difficulty.

Mack, a New Yorker, is not a delegate. Therefore, John W. Davis, and George W. Olvany and Max D. Steuer of Tammany objected to use of the usual phrase: "Alabama yields to New York."

They asked Chairman Walsh to require that Alabama yield "to Albert C. Ritchie of New York." And he so decided.

Charlotte Poillon Sues For $100,000 Over Book

New York, June 30—Suit for $100,000 has been filed here against Covici-Friede, publishers, by Charlotte Poillon, who with her sister has been a familiar figure to courtroom habitues for the past quarter century. The suit is based on alleged misrepresentation of her in the book, "The Great Mouthpiece," by Gene Fowler, published by the Covici - Friede firm.

She quoted passages from the book to show she had been "maliciously and falsely made to appear as a disreputable character."

Dry Leader Gets Respite on Auto Law Sentence

Portland, Ore., June 30—The case of Dr. Clarence True Wilson, dean of the Methodist dry forces convicted yesterday in court here on a reckless driving charge has been continued for sentence.

L. F. Welch, driver of the car with which one driven by Dr. Wilson collided, testified the dry leader had failed to stop at a through street and had entered the intersection at high speed. Other witnesses corroborated this. Dr. Wilson testified he stopped at the intersection but admitted he had had difficulty with his machine.

New York Heiress Seeks Island Domain in South Seas

San Francisco, Cal., June 30—Miss Marjorie King, New York heiress, is bound for the South Seas to purchase a tiny island over which she may rule as imperial sovereign.

The young heiress stopped here for a few days and revealed her desire to become ruler of one of the tiny South Sea islands which fiction writers describe so interestingly.

years in two hundred and fifty villages, and without the preliminary training that lawyers must have.

It is all part of our American system of taking things too easily.

It means little to you, but a great deal to Chicago, that "the $5 quotation was reached to the hog market today after a lapse of three and a half months."

What changes in the life of the pig pry and the palace.

How could any hog possibly imagine, as he is dragged screaming to the slaughter, that the price men are willing to pay for the pleasure of eating his carcass makes or unmakes the prosperity of thousands of farmers.

In Chicago yesterday, for instance, the packers took for killing 3000 hogs, and "shippers" took 4000, while 4000 were left unsold.

That would seem only horrible murder and cannibalism to a pig. We know that it is part of civilization.

How can we, only a little higher in the scale of evolution, expect to know our destiny, as father time drags us from this pasture.

Notwithstanding stories of ink well tossing, bombardment of books and a punch on the chin, Mrs. Barbara Smythe Shuman, 22, lost her fight for a divorce from Edwin A. Shuman, Jr., of Marblehead. The punch on the chin at a bridge game on May 16, according to Mrs. Shuman, was the climax of their many troubles. Judge White refused to grant a decree at Salem Probate Court. (Staff Photo.)

KNOCKED OUT SISTER IN TIFF OVER A MAN

Kin Accuses Her as Affection Thief in Her $200,000 Balm Suit Against Aimee Mate

Los Angeles, June 30 (INS)—With the mystery of who hurled the goldfish bowl solved, David "Bigboy" Hutton, Jr., husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, today was expected to take the stand in his own defense.

Sued for $200,000 by Myrtle Hazel Joan St. Pierre, "health nurse" who charged he broke her heart when he discarded her for Aimee, Hutton was prepared to further enliven the spicy heart-balm suit.

ONE PUNCH KNOCKOUT

Called as a witness for Hutton, Mrs. Gladys Cassill, a sister of Miss St. Pierre, testified that the latter had "knocked me out with one punch" in a quarrel between the pair after Myrtle had accused Gladys of hugging and kissing Myrtle's divorced husband.

Gladys then admitted she had thrown a goldfish bowl at Myrtle.

"Myrtle's husband was just like a big brother-in-law to me," Mrs. Cassill said.

Dr. Paul Marshal, health institute operator, testified that Miss St. Pierre had extorted $60 from him on threats of "talking" to his wife, who subsequently divorced him.

Other witnesses told of gay liquor parties at her Hollywood bungalow.

Counsel for Hutton skipped quickly through a group of witnesses and announced that when the preliminary testimony was completed, Hutton would take the stand to repudiate the broken love story of the nurse.

RIBALD NAMES USED

To ribald names which defense witnesses claimed Mrs. St. Pierre used in describing the evangelist's husband another was added today when Mrs. Lillian Benjamin testified that she heard the nurse refer to him as a pudding head.

Mrs. Benjamin said she was visiting Mrs. St. Pierre one night when the telephone rang.

After ending the conversation, she said the nurse turned to her and remarked, "It was a fellow named Hutton who wanted to come out to see her, but she didn't want him around—that he was only a pudding head."

Model Says Milton Friend Concealed His Marriage; Love Letters Are Revealed

Suit for $50,000, charging breach of promise to marry, was filed today in Federal court by Paula Marquise, attractive blonde divorcee and mannequin of New York, against Charles E. Baker, real estate dealer, living in Milton.

Baker, married and the father of one child, is charged by the attractive blonde with concealing from her the fact that he is married, with persuading her to go, a divorce on his promise to marry her, and then refusing to keep his promise.

CALLED "GOLD DIGGER"

Baker, in answer to the suit, declared to the Boston Evening American that every claim made in the suit is a "downright falsehood," while his attorney characterized Miss Marquise as "a smart New York gold digger looking for some soft money."

The mannequin turned over to her Boston attorneys, Viola and Centracchio, of 291 Washington st., letters she said were written to her by Baker, in many of which he called her "sweetheart." The letters were signed "Chuck."

One letter, dated June 16, 1931, was addressed to "Darling Mine" and closed with:

"I love you, darling, with a heart that is full."

According to M. Edward Viola of the girl's counsel, she and Baker met eight years ago while they were visiting in Canada and when she was Mrs. Paula Tuller.

Baker, she claims, told her he was single and he wooed her ardently. Eight months ago, at his insistence and with his promise to marry her, she obtained a divorce, only to be told by Baker, she claims, that he was married and could not marry her.

ROMANCE IS ENDED

"It's curtains," he told her, according to the girl, "I've been married all the time. I thought I'd be able to get a divorce, but I can't."

Miss Marquise, who resumed her maiden name after the divorce, charges that Baker jilted her for a Milton society girl.

"This girl is just an adventuress and she's looking for a chance to get something for nothing. Let her try and get it," Baker's attorney, William Herbitz declared.

2 MONTHS FOR DUCKING BOY

Dragging an eight-year-old boy along the shore and then holding his head under water "just for fun" today cost Herbert C. Quanstrom, 46, of Massachusetts ave., 60 days in jail.

He was arrested at Revere Beach after Patrolman Joseph O'Connor of Cambridge had witnessed the strange scene of three young girls trying to tear the screaming boy away from Quanstrom's grasp.

Before O'Connor could reach the group, Quanstrom had dragged the boy into the water and plunged his head under. He was dragging the boy again when O'Connor came up.

"It was just for fun," he told the officer, who couldn't see the joke, however, and arrested Quanstrom for assault and battery.

In Chelsea District Court Quanstrom refused to defend himself, remarking, "I have nothing to say." Judge Samuel Cutler said, "Sixty days." A charge of drunkenness was filed.

The boy is Walter White of West Cottage st., Roxbury. His mother was later found seated in Quanstrom's car at the beach. She admitted being a friend of the accused, but did not know of his actions on the beach.

VOTE ON REPEAL ALARMS DRYS

Chicago, June 30—The Democratic prohibition repeal plank brought organized dry forces face to face with a dilemma of major proportions today.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling of New York, one of the National Prohibition board of strategy, condemned the Democratic stand as vigorously as might be expected, and made known that the board, war council of 30 dry organizations, would get together today in secret conference, leading toward something definite tomorrow.

Poling disclosed the diverging opinions. They are:

To throw the organized dry vote to Hoover and the Republican modification submission program.

To seek an independent dry candidate for President and register as big as possible a protest vote.

To stay out of the presidential contest and concentrate on electing dry Congressmen.

Under the new circumstances first opinions of neutral observers leaned to the idea that President Hoover would get the organized dry support. But he has yet to deliver his nomination acceptance speech, which may have some bearing on the Republican party's prohibition stand in the campaign.

MR. HEARST PRAISED AS OUTSTANDING CITIZEN

Chicago, June 30—In an interview last night, Samuel Untermyer, famous attorney, here as a new York delegate, said, when asked whom he estimated to be the outstanding statesman of the day in the public life of either party:

Samuel Untermyer

"My answer, given in a spirit of sadness and humiliation, is that 'there ain't no such animal' nowadays. Most of the men in our national life upon whom develops the responsibility of dealing with the great problems that confront us know as much about the science and history of economics as a cow knows of Latin.

"They are floundering about like fish out of water, clutching at straws and embracing every nostrum that comes along. The only man I have come across whose views on our great perplexing problems have shown courage, vision, clarity and a high order of patriotism—and he, unfortunately, is not in public life—is William Randolph Hearst.

"He has been right and highly constructive on every one of these questions and he has spoken fearlessly on all of them and has pointed out the road we should travel back to normalcy.

"I heartily concur in his warning that the first step must be to transfer the seat of government back from Wall Street, where it now rests, to Washington, where it belongs. The bulk of our misfortunes is due to the false and selfish councils and dominances of high finance.

"In order to accomplish this end, the present convention should get rid of or turn its back upon its stalking horses masquerading as Democrats, who have been planted on us by 'the interests' to do their will in the selection of the candidate so that whichever of the two candidates wins, they win.

"That is at the basis of the opposition to Governor Roosevelt, that is why they are raising heaven and earth to defeat him. That is why I am for him, first, last and all the time. High finance at the moment may be down, but it is never out.

"If, as has often been charged, the district leader played politics in his party 12 months in the year, these astute gentlemen play politics in both parties 13 months in the year, besides overtime."

HOOVER BEATEN, SAYS BUTLER

Paris, June 30 (INS)—The Eighteenth Amendment is definitely doomed by the action of the Democratic national convention in Chicago in voting overwhelmingly for repeal, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, leader of the unsuccessful fight for a repeal plank at the Republican national convention, told International News Service today.

Plainly the Hoover "straddle" plank "dooms his administration to the fate it invites and deserves," Dr. Butler added.

"The Democrats have reported a plank that is clear-cut, definite and direct."

The overwhelming sentiment of both parties favors immediate repeal, "that the liquor traffic now running wholly at large may be brought under effective control and subjected to taxation," Dr. Butler said.

FAKED TICKETS CAUSE RIOT

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—Gate crashers found the going tough at the Democratic convention today after last night's jam, in which thousands of rightful holders of tickets were shut out because others usurped their seats.

Twenty-two thousand, it was estimated, squeezed into the Stadium to hear the prelude to the big show while outside a frenzied throng threatened a riot against fire department orders that no more be admitted.

One gate was smashed, others thrown open by main force, a hundred police reserves finally restored order.

The confusion, police said, was due to forgery of 10,000 "courtesy cards" bearing Mayor Cermak's name. Doorkeepers were given strict orders to look for them today. Thousands, police said, have been sold to unsuspecting buyers.

SIGNS 2 BILLION GERMAN BUDGET

Berlin, June 30 (AP)—President Von Hindenburg today signed an emergency decree putting into effect the 1932 budget approved by the Reichstrat on Tuesday. He did not sign the budget, necessity for enacting a budget which, in the normal course of procedure, would require months.

The budget balances at 8,173,000,000 marks (approximately $1,937,000,000) as against 10,200,000,000 marks less than in 1931 and 3,700,000,000 marks less than in 1930. The heavy items are:

Social welfare, 1,400,000,000.
Pensions, 930,000,000.
Unemployment relief, 500,000,000.
Civil service, army and navy, 700,000,000.
Debt services, 940,000,000.
War liquidation, 490,000,000.
Miscellaneous expenditures, 1,000,000,000.
Transfers to states, 2,100,000,000.

RESCUE 2 FROM CAPSIZED DORY

Two Swampscott men were rescued today as they were clinging to their overturned dory two miles off Nahant by Capt. Max Codwise, fisherman, and a coastguard crew from the Nahant life-saving station.

The men, James Haggerty, Swampscott store keeper, and his brother, Robert, were nearly exhausted when picked up by Capt. Codwise, who sighted the overturned dory as he was making the rounds of his lobster pots.

Both men were rushed ashore to be treated for immersion.

REMEMBER, IT'S 3-CENT MAIL

Postmaster William E. Hurley today urged the public to remember the changes in postal rates effective July 6 because failure to pay postage in full will delay the dispatch and delivery of mail and cause inconvenience.

The postage rate will be increased from two cents an ounce or fraction thereof to three cents on letters and other first-class mail addressed for delivery anywhere in the United States or whereever domestic rates apply.

In addition to the change on letter and other first-class mail there will be an increase in air mail rates of eight cents an ounce or fraction thereof and 13 cents for each additional ounce or fraction thereof.

FR. COX PLANS 'BLUE SHIRTS'

Paris, June 30 (INS)—Father James Cox of Pittsburgh, "fighting chaplain" of the American Expeditionary Force, revealed today he intends to organize a "Blue-Shirt" army of unemployed in the United States along the lines of Adolph Hitler's famous "Brown Shirts" and Premier Mussolini's "Black Shirt" fascists.

He said he was en route to Berlin and Rome to interview the two fascist leaders to obtain advice on carrying out his plans.

Father Cox, leader of an unemployment army to Washington several months ago, said he was a candidate for presidential the Jobless Liberty party, which is to be the official name of his "Blue Shirt" forces, at its first national convention in St. Louis on Aug. 17.

REPEAL PLANK ENDORSED BY ROOSEVELT

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt today indorsed the wet plank adopted last night by the Democratic convention.

In a telegram to James A. Farley, his campaign manager, he said the country and the party ought to be congratulated on the platform and that he was for the repeal plank, which he said was substantially the same as one on which he ran for the governorship two years ago.

The telegram reads:

"The country and the party ought to be congratulated on the shortest, clearest and most readable platform in our whole history. I am glad the will of the party was shown on the majority prohibition plank by such a definite majority. I am for it. It is substantially the same plank I ran on in this state, two years ago."

Today's Program at Convention

Stadium, Chicago, June 30 (INS)—The program for the fourth day of the Democratic national convention today follows:

Call to order at noon (central daylight time) by Chairman Senator Thomas J. Walsh.

Prayer by George Shaw Cook, C. S. B., Christian Science teacher, Chicago.

Continuation of debate on minority reports in resolutions committee.

Balloting on minority reports.

Adoption of platform.

Nomination of candidates for President.

ROOSEVELT IN FAMILY PARTY

Albany, N. Y., June 30—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, sitting his silent watch by the radio, today heard the tumultuous voice of the Chicago Democratic convention say: "We favor the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment." He offered no comment.

The Governor had made no special plans for today.

If he should decide to use the 13-passenger air liner held in readiness to fly him to Chicago, he may make it a family party.

In a probable passenger list are included Mrs. Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, and John, the Governor's youngest son.

The Governor's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, arrived from Hyde Park yesterday, but it was considered unlikely she would make an airplane trip.

Roosevelt's eldest son, James, and wife and the Governor's daughter Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, and young Franklin D., Jr., are already in Chicago.

Members of the Governor's staff who would accompany him, it was said, are his official secretary, Guernsey Cross; his personal secretary, Miss Margaret Le Hand—"Missy" to members of the Roosevelt family—Sergt. Earl Miller, the State trooper who always accompanies him on trips away from the capital, and Irvin McDuffy, his valet.

RIVALS HARD AT WORK TO HOLD DELEGATES

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Chicago, June 30 (US)—Intensive efforts to co-ordinate presidential delegate blocs are under full headway.

Even before the echo of cheering over Al Smith's liberal program (edited by the Roosevelt committee on resolutions) had died away last night the managers of all candidates for the presidential nomination were hard at work.

Despite reports to the contrary it was plain that the jam barring all candidates on the two-thirds rule was holding.

MANAGERS CONFIDENT

The rival managers, fighting their way through densely packed aisles, came out of the turmoil last night satisfied that their lines will hold.

It seemed reasonably certain that there will be no realignment of the forces supporting Roosevelt, Garner, Smith, Ritchie, White, Reed and Murray until after the managers of each have had a chance to do some more missionary work after the convention has swept the decks clear of everything else.

Some of the leaders were in favor of going right into the Presidential dance after the debate on the platform. The great majority, however, was said to oppose this suggestion.

Making allowances for obviously extravagant claims it appeared reasonably certain that Roosevelt, barring unexpected changes, would be shy somewhere around 135 votes of the 770 necessary to nominate.

SMITH AND REED JOIN

The claim of the candidates opposing Roosevelt, apparently reliable, was that more than 480 votes would be distributed among other candidates.

If these claims are upheld rival contenders will be able to prevent Roosevelt from being nominated on the first roll call.

Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and Al Smith devoted their attention to trying to preserve the morale of their own and co-operating units.

Reed also had a few problems to solve. One was a mild rebellion in the ranks of his own state delegation.

The second was his determination to prevent Tammany Hall or Wall Street from dictating selection of a candidate.

First Presidential Ballot Forecast

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—Here is the indicated first ballot lineup for the Democratic presidential nomination, as forecast by instructions, pledges and statements of State leaders to date.

Where such statements are in conflict, the votes are classed as doubtful. Several shifts may take place among delegates which have not yet fully caucused:

Vote	State	Roosevelt	Smith	Garner	Doubtful
24	Alabama	24	"	"	"
6	Arizona	6	"	"	"

Ohio's 52 votes will go to Governor White on the first ballot.

Virginia's 24 will go to Governor Byrd.

SHEPPARD AND MORRIS AGREE TO DRY VOTE

Washington, June 30—For the first time since adoption of the Volstead Act, the proposal for light wines and beer was studied seriously in Congress today in belief that legalization of these beverages is inevitable.

The overwhelming vote for repeal in the Democratic convention in Chicago was declared proof that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead Act no longer are sectional issues.

Senator Sheppard (D., Texas), coauthor of the Eighteenth Amendment, said today in a statement he would vote to submit a repeal amendment unless his party referendum in Texas in July decides against it.

Senator Bingham (R., Ct.) said that in view of the Democratic platform he would seek to amend the Volstead act to permit four per cent beer before Congress adjourns.

WETS HAIL NORRIS

A declaration by Senator Norris (R.) of Nebraska in favor of modification was hailed jubilantly by the wets. Norris is chairman of the powerful Senate Judiciary committee, which has consistently blocked efforts toward modification. He has fought in behalf of the dry cause for years.

Admitting that "enforcement seems to be a failure," Norris declared:

"If we are going to try another experiment, we could give a different definition to intoxicating liquor by increasing the alcoholic content. That will enable Congress to tax any beverage with an alcoholic content below the definition.

"I am not sure but what that is the best way and incidentally it would bring in new revenue and that appeals to me now."

Rep. Rainey, Democratic leader, told newspapermen today he saw no opportunity for another House vote this session on prohibition.

"I do not think the actions of the two conventions would make any differences in votes this session," Rainey said. "Certainly, it would not change enough votes for the two-thirds majority required to submit an amendment to the Constitution."

Rainey voted last March in favor of submitting to the people a State control amendment.

Democratic opponents of prohibitions were delighted with the platform adopted.

Senator Copeland of New York said it was a "good platform, courageous, manly, straightforward and unequivocal."

SEN. COOLIDGE HAPPY

Senator Coolidge (D., Mass.) said he would "be very glad of an early opportunity to vote for repeal and a more liberal construction of the Volstead Act."

Senator Robinson (R., Ind.), a supporter of prohibition, said the Democratic plank was "pretty wet."

"If they attempted to carry it out," he said, "it would be in violation of the constitution."

Commenting on Senator Sheppard's announcement, Robinson said: "That leaves me all alone."

Unit Rule Holds Maine Vote in Line for Roosevelt

—By JOHN T. LAMBERT—

Chicago Stadium, June 30—Maine was thinking of breaking from Roosevelt. There being Smith, Baker and Ritchie votes in the outfit.

But the majority clapped on the unit rule. By a vote of seven to five. And now all 12 of the Pine Tree votes are certain to be rung up on the register for the New Yorker.

Texas and Massachusetts have been voting together. United by their opposition to Roosevelt. 'Twas not In Madison Square Garden only eight years ago. Nor at Houston, in 1928. Politics make strange bedfellows.

Who is this man carrying the Porto Rico standard in the Roosevelt parade? His face looks familiar. Why, it is none other than our old friend, James A. "Jerry" Watson, of Boston.

The amiable Jerry, as alert as any newspaperman you ever knew, stops to give us the following three paragraphs for this column:

1—James H. Stone has dropped in to pay his respects to the Bay Staters. He is the same Jimmy Stone who served in the Boston City Council in 1898. Now lives in Chicago. Is with the shoe and leather people. At a salary of $25,000 a year.

2—Mrs. Jean Whittemore, national committeewoman from Porto Rico, is the widow of the late Arthur Whittemore of Sturbridge. Who was the first Democrat ever elected chairman of the board of selectmen of that town.

3—Arthur F. Watson now runs the Dun-Bradstreet agency in this man's town. He is the same Arthur who was beaten in that memorable contest between the Watsons for the Boston City Council.

Hero comes Josephus Daniels.

Oil Chiefs in Paris

Paris, June 30 (AP)—An international oil conference opened here today with British and American representatives predominating in numbers. Soviet Russia representatives had not appeared when the session began.

HOOVER SIGNS ECONOMY BILL

Washington, June 30 (AP)—President Hoover today signed into law the much-debated and battle-scarred national economy bill, estimated to save around $150,000,000 in government expenditures.

In signing the measure, the Chief Executive said he did so with "limited satisfaction."

He added the measure "falls far short of the economies proposed" by the administration. He objected also to the measure's lack of authorization for abolishing and consolidating government bureaus.

Roosevelt on First, Says Farley

Chicago, June 30 (INS)—James A. Farley, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's campaign manager, was caught by an International News Service reporter as he emerged from his room early today.

"Are you still confident the Governor will go over on the first ballot?" he was asked.

"We are still working," was the answer.

"Well, what do you think it will take, two or three ballots?"

"Oh, I think we will be able to do it on the first ballot," Farley replied. "Of course, I may be disappointed but I think we can do it."

DRY RULE DOOM IS SEEN IN PLATFORM

Copyright, 1932

Chicago, June 30 (INS)—The Democrats went down the main street on prohibition with a plank demanding repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the immediate modification of the Volstead act. The minority offered a submission plank with no reference to the Volstead act.

Claude G. Bowers

Former Senator Hitchcock, reading the shortest and most meaningful platform in generations, was greeted with a fusillade of cheers, for each plank was a clearcut declaration on a vital issue.

That on the cancellation of the debts brought a demonstration.

But it was the Eighteenth Amendment plank that brought the storm; and for many minutes it raged, men standing, shouting, singing, marching, bearing standards.

CHEER AL AND WALSH.

Then the debate. Walsh of Massachusetts, a forceful orator, spoke with vehemence and eloquence, denouncing pussyfooting, demanding a definite declaration. Cordell Hull appealed for the minority report; but the very air seemed to pulsate with hostility to his cause.

And then the feature demonstration of the convention thus far.

Al Smith was announced.

He appeared in the rear of Chairman Walsh. His face glowed with a smile. The delegates sprang to their feet, stood on their chairs, shouted, cheered; the great organ blared forth with the "Sidewalks of New York" and many joined in singing the song. The standards of numerous states began a procession around the hall.

A STONED PROPHET

Walsh was before the microphone waiting patiently. Smith stood a little behind him. There were tears in his eyes. At first he was pleased; but as the ovation continued he was deeply moved. It was an Al Smith I have never seen before.

Here was a prophet who had been stoned; and he looked on as the stones were made into a monument to commemorate the triumph of his fight, the realization of his prophecy. He spoke in characteristic fashion, with the old flashes of humor.

As speaker after speaker from the South happened on the platform for the majority report everyone had the feeling that a revolution had been wrought . . . Ritchie appeared and was given a notable ovation . . . Shouse, defeated for the chairmanship, had his triumph . . . Others joined the procession.

Here was history in the making!

Here before one's eyes was the definite, inevitable passing of the Eighteenth Amendment from the Constitution it had brought into disrepute in the minds of millions.

Thus the battle on the Eighteenth Amendment is made, clear-cut, unescapable, and the utterly dishonest, double-dealing, hypocritical concoction that Ogden Mills, with the official retainers of Mr. Hoover, forced into the Republican platform, is met foursquare with a declaration that is bold and honest.

But the platform was not confined to prohibition. It dealt with the vital economic issues—the most forthright enunciations of principles and policies that has come from a convention in many a day.

Raskob Happy Over Wets' Victory

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—John J. Raskob is a happy man today—happy that the Democratic party convention has come to the wet views he has so long espoused, and upon which it split wide open four years ago.

Retiring as chairman of the national committee after contributing in six figures to finance his party in the last four years and devoting much of his time and energy to it he said today:

"It is fine this result. I am happy."

Was the result of his time and money worth while?

Raskob smiled again and said, "Of course."

TAMMANY AND TUNNEY ATTEND DUFFY MASS

By GENE TUNNEY

(Copyright, 1932.)

Chicago, June 30 (INS)—We stole away from the political laden atmosphere of this convention city to the quiet, restful Holy Name Cathedral, where a solemn high requiem mass was celebrated in memory of Fr. Francis P. Duffy, the war chaplain of the fighting 69th Regiment of New York. The service was arranged by Marty McCarthy, one of New York's oldest Assemblymen and political sights and one of the "fighting" chaplain's devoted admirers.

Gene Tunney

Mass was celebrated simultaneously with the funeral service in New York and was attended by many of New York's political leaders and delegates to the convention, Lieut.-Gov. Lehman of New York, Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, John F. Curry, Tammany leader of Brooklyn; Judge Thomas McAndrews, secretary to Mayor James J. Walker, and former Sheriff Thomas Farley were among those seen at the service.

WAR BUDDY SINGS MASS

Quite appropriately, mass was sung by a former marine chaplain, Father Harris Darsch of Bradley, Ill., a war buddy of Father Duffy's. Father Darsch had the distinction just 14 years ago of having a solemn high requiem mass celebrated in his memory after having been reported lost while serving with the marines in the battle of Boissons, July, 1918.

It was a beautiful and impressive service and fitting the memory of that noble American patriot, Father Duffy. It is the humble opinion of the writer, whose judgment may be prejudiced by long, affectionate friendship, that no man contributed more to his church during a lifetime than did Father Duffy.

HIS NOTABLE RECORD

Father Duffy's liberality, his unbigoted and unprejudiced point of view, his practical and intellectual holiness, and his charity and courage were recognized and admired by all people of all creeds. To have known Father Duffy was to have loved him, regardless of one's religious views.

There was something fine and touching about the gesture made by the Tammany chieftains and office-holders. They are in Chicago on important business, possibly the most important business that Tammany has ever had to deal with, yet they put aside their dickerings, bickerings and intriguing for a couple of hours to pay tribute to the memory of a man they respected. Tammany has a splendid habit of doing that kind of thing.

Smith, Tammany to "Back Ritchie"

Chicago, June 30—Talk of a deal between former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Tammany Chieftain John F. Curry for both to line up behind Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland in a final drive to head off Gov. Roosevelt from the presidential nomination was rife today.

A proposal under which Smith would withdraw as a candidate after the second ballot if, in the meantime, Roosevelt had not made the two-thirds grade, and the combined strength be thrown to the Maryland executive, is reported to have been "suggested" to Smith by a spokesman for Curry.

The Smith people have been told bluntly that unless their candidate falls into line promptly it may be too late.

Farley Finds All Leaders---No One Wants the Underdog's Job

By "BUGS" BAER

Chicago, June 30—How would you like to be Vice-President of America and spend the next four years wondering what laundry has got your sox?

If you want this neat position just step up to Jim Farley, tag him and holler, "I'm it."

In return you must solemnly swear, testify and affirm that you will support Franklin Roosevelt for the Democratic citation.

That's all. You don't even have to be a delegate. Mr. Farley has already asked all the delegates. And they have all replied in the negative, the notative and the nertzative.

Mr. Farley has asked all the alternatives. He has interrogated the leaders, the ushers and strangers who happened to be passing the Stadium.

If you see a large, husky gentleman doing the giant swing on a politician's lapels you will recognize the gymnast as the Olympic Farley and his victim as a prospective Vice-President.

Everybody in town has been offered the job. And now Jim is canvassing the steamboat wharves and the railroad depots hoping that a sucker will blow into town who hasn't heard about it.

Jim started by asking the most prominent citizens. But by Friday he will be doing missionary work among the Boy Scouts.

Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, was the first prospect approached by Farley. And Huey's reply was shortened more from indignation than from cloture.

Mr. Senator Long speaking: "Suh, the term of Vice-President as applied to a Southern gentleman is a fighting word. I would rather be a small oyster in the gulf than a large one in a stew. Repeat that, suh, and it will be coffee and pistols for us in the morning."

James Farley went away from there with his foot in his hand. He realized that Huey would take both pistols and he would have to drink the coffee.

Wild Bill Murray's reaction was almost the same. The next voice you will hear will be that of Governor Murray.

Governor Murray now on the air: "I would rather be a poor man's bride than be hung with diamonds from here to there. Mr. Farley, I was born in the West where men are men and boys are incorrigible. I'm a little prairie flower growing wilder every hour. I would rather spend my declining years under the Oklahoma skies than grow old and gray in the news reels."

Governor White, of Ohio: "Mr. Farley, I have led an honorable, industrious life. Why should I accept your offer and grow a long, white beard at the public's expense?"

Delegate Crackpot: "Sir, I'm a politician. I'll take everything that ain't nailed down. And if it is nailed down I'll take the nails, too. A politician is like an anteater. He cannot make a living and keep his nose clean at the same time. But, you cannot temt me with your nefarious bait. Get thee behind me, for your steps lead down to Sheol. And, furthermore, how do I know I'm going to be elected?"

There is something in Delegate Crackpot's last question. No guarantee goes along with Farley's offer. You can have the nomination. But that doesn't mean you have crossed the Jordan.

Which is why Senator Walsh replied: "No chance, James. You're offering something you ain't got to a guy who doesn't want it. In other words, my young friend, you are selling a moose on the hoof and a bear in a hollow tree. It's mine if I can collect."

Newt Baker feels the same way: "I don't want to be Vice-President because I've got work to do."

Gov. Ritchie: "As Governor of Maryland I give myself a last-minute reprieve."

Speaker Garner: "I don't intend to spend the next four years counting the buttons on another man's coat tails."

Chairman Shouse: "I'm a chairman now without a chair. Why oh why did I take a hyphenated title of Vice-President? The last half of the word means nothing. And I can go, raided for the first half."

After riffling the face cards, Mr. Farley shuffled the rest of the pack. But all the boys got sprained necks from waving their heads from the east to the west.

Nobody wants the job. Not even Mr. Curtis who has been in durance vile for four years and who has had the Republican nomination forced on him like mamma puts a bib on the baby.

If you want it just write in and ask James Farley, Democratic Unemployment Bureau, Congress Hotel, Chicago. No references required and no character necessary.

Don't apply in person. Jim doesn't want to know what you look like.

SWEEP IN FOUR OF N. E. STATES IS PREDICTED BY WALSH

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Chicago Stadium, June 30—The enthusiastic prediction that the Democratic party will sweep Massachusetts and will carry at least three of the other New England states was made by United States Senator David I. Walsh in this stadium early today after the convention overwhelmingly adopted the plank for repeal of prohibition.

"The Democratic party, in one of the greatest conventions in history of this country, has given to the people of America one of the bravest platforms of principle ever written," declared Senator Walsh with exultant enthusiasm.

CURLEY JUBILANT

In this conviction he was joined by Mayor James M. Curley, who before the day is ended will have made one of the seconding speeches in behalf of Governor Roosevelt for the presidency.

"It is a platform upon which Governor Roosevelt can stand full heartedly and without the slightest equivocation," said Mayor Curley, "because it enunciates the identical policy of repeal which he declared in his memorable letter to Senator Wagner more than two years ago."

New England voted overwhelmingly for the repeal plank, with its promise of modification of the Volstead act, in order that the manufacture and sale of beer and wines may be accomplished before the infinishable process of constitutional alteration permits the revocation of prohibition.

Out of its total of 90 votes, New England cast 87½ for the repeal plank and only 2½ for the minority offering, which sounded so much like the Republican platform adopted in this convention half only two weeks ago.

Verification of Curley's statement actually was made in a speech to the convention by Robert E. Murchie of Concord, former United States attorney for New Hampshire.

In refutation of some newspaper reports that Roosevelt had sent secret urgings to the delegations both for and against the repeal plank, Murchie said.

"I come from a state whose delegates were elected in behalf of Governor Roosevelt. Not one syllable of instruction has come from Governor Roosevelt, and I have talked frequently with him, as to how the delegates should vote.

GERRY IN ADDRESS

"I am authorized to say that the delegates pledged to him are free to vote as they choose on this problem.

Ex-Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, was the only other New Englander to address the convention in its long and frank discussion of prohibition repeal.

"I am certain," he said, "that I speak the sentiment of that State when I urge you to adopt the majority plank."

Senator Walsh stood out like a monument in the convention, which applauded him liberally for the titanic struggle he had waged for repeal. He and delegate William A. Comstock of Michigan were the only members of the preliminary resolutions committee who advocated the extinction of prohibition.

The committee was against them, but Walsh and Comstock continued before the full committee and to the complete surprise of the convention and the country, as well, prevailed upon the majority to approve the plank for which they struggled.

PICKED TO LEAD

Successful in this battle, which had waged continuously in the privacy of the committee room at the Congress Hotel for four days, repeal became the majority plank and Walsh was given the honor of waging the fight for its adoption by the convention itself. He had complete charge of the time allotted for the debate in favor of repeal. It was he who designed time for all the opponents of prohibition, including Smith of New York, Ritchie of Maryland, as well as Gerry and Murchie of New England.

It was following the triumphant and extraordinary victory of the anti-prohibition forces that Walsh declared the majority States of New England will be triumphant this fall, "no matter who the candidate may be."

DELEGATES HAPPY

"Massachusetts, we know, from every mandate given by the people to their public servants is done with this evil thing which has destroyed the progress that had been made in true temperance," said Walsh.

"The people of New England have the utmost regard for the one political party that has had the courage to speak the truth, despite political consequence and the people will reward that people with its confidence."

The attitude of the Massachusetts delegation was jubilant in contrast with the dejected spirit of the Bay State Republicans who sat here in the same seats earlier in the month.

Congressman William P. Connery of Lynn had his moment on the rostrum, although with not such satisfactory results. He pleaded for ratification of the plank which would assure immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

"We are not looking for sympathy," he declared. "We want justice only, and this in behalf of the 20,000 ex-soldiers, some of them who wear the Distinguished Service Medal, who sleep tonight in the mud flats of Anacostia.

Gibbons Lauds Connery for Alfalfa Bonus Aid

By Floyd Gibbons

Copyright, 1932, by International News Service

Chicago, June 30 (INS)—Hello, everybody!

And hello, you ragged, hungry, jobless veterans of the bonus army, down there on the Potomac.

Boys, I've found a friend of yours out here at the Democratic national convention. It's Governor "Bill" Murray of Oklahoma—Alfalfa Bill.

Floyd Gibbons

He's a friend who wasn't afraid to step up and ask for your bonus money. And he's down there on the floor right now, fighting for you. He has some able lieutenants on his staff, too. Congressman William P. Connery of Massachusetts and Congressman John A. Rankin of Mississippi and chairman of the war veterans committee in the House, are two of them.

Well, maybe you didn't expect help from a plain, old rip-snorter like Alfalfa Bill. But there's kindliness in Bill's blue eyes and honesty in his voice, and—well, anyway, he thought enough of you boys of 1917 to write out an additional plank for the Democratic platform, putting the party on record as favoring the payment of the bonus at once. Signed it himself and had enough influence to get it before the convention, long with some good, red-hot speeches in favor of it.

Rankin Sees Boom in Cash Bonus

The convention is going to vote on that bonus plank today. But if it isn't adopted, it won't be Alfalfa Bill's fault. He's still with you.

Yes, sir, there were some sizzling speeches that went with that plank.

John Rankin's speech would have made you boys down there on the Potomac happy. Sounded something like the old bugle call on payday.

Rankin told that convention that it's not only you fellows who are out of work and hungry. Said millions of other men are walking the streets.

That Mississippi congressman argued that if Uncle Sam paid the rest of the bonus now, that it would go straight into the marts of trade and just naturally start people working again. Rankin said there were 24,000 of you in Washington now—sleeping out of doors, out of rations—everybody against you.

It's a Pledge to Make U. S. Wet

So, boys, keep your eye on the papers. Well see today what happens to that proposition your friend, Alfalfa Bill Murray, started.

There's another thing we'll be watching today. We'll try to get a line on who's going to carry out all those pledges the Democrats made in their platform. Oh, yes—they have signed the pledge—well, a pledge to go wet.

Looked for a while last night like things might be sliding in Al Smith's direction. Most people I've talked to sort of thought Al had been counted out till he returned to the platform after four long years.

And say, I guess we've all heard about famous comebacks. But when Al stepped into the spotlight last night for the first time, it was a genuine thriller.

It was a return from Elba.

Cheers Awaken Al's Urge to Fight Again

And the old guard dipped their colors and cheered. They slapped each other on the back and leaned over and asked the nearest neighbor—"it ain't a bit hard to like that guy, is it?"

You could see Al's face as he stood there taking nearly ten minutes of cheers and applause—listening to his old campaign tunes—fumbling at his tie—that he was smelling the smoke of battle again.

Back came the old fire, too, when he sailed into Cordell Hull of Tennessee and ripped his anti-repeal speech to shreds.

But there was a pathetic note in his voice when he said: "In 1928 I was four years ahead of my time on repeal. And look what happened to me."

Al must have felt the old thrill of victory when Mike Igoe, the Democratic leader in Illinois, rose and roared:

"I followed Al Smith gladly four years ago and I am proud to follow him again."

Fifty-eight Illinois delegates, only an hour before, had been reported wavering toward Franklin Roosevelt.

Al Could Steal Stadium Now

And Texas was heard from. Heard through the leader of the delegates who had opposed the wringing wet plank. Well, they changed their minds after Al's speech. Ordered their spokesman to vote for Al's plank.

And you ought to see the Tammany cabinet. Ten of the most noted lawyers in New York. John W. Davis, Sam Untermeyer, George Gordon Battle, Max Steuer, Dudley Field Malone, Jimmie Gerard, Judge Olvaney, Jimmie Walker, Dist. Atty. Crain, Judge Cohalan—well, that's all I could count from where I sat.

But there's one thing sure! With all that legal talent behind him, Al could doggoned nearly steal the Stadium and get away with it.

Doyle Denies Filing Nomination Papers

While nomination papers are in circulation for State Rep. William H. Doyle of Malden for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Eighth District, Representative Doyle declares that announcements that he was to run for Congress have not been authorized by him nor has he had knowledge of them.

MAINE TO VOTE 8 TO 4 FOR THE VETS' BONUS

Chicago, June 30—Maine's delegation to the Democratic convention today was ready to vote eight to four for immediate payment of the cash bonus to war veterans.

A poll was taken while the delegates waited for the end of the prohibition roll call in which the traditional dry state's delegates voted 10 to 2 for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

United in support of repeal, delegates from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Vermont were less certain of their position on the bonus.

When the call for nominations for President comes Gov. Ely of Massachusetts will present Alfred E. Smith's name, and former Senator Peter G. Gerry of the Smith-pledged Rhode Island group is expected to second the nomination. Connecticut's vote will go to Smith.

New Hampshire and Vermont are solid for Roosevelt, and a New Hampshire man, Fred C. Small, will second the nomination.

Whether there will be an attempt to split Maine's delegation's vote if Roosevelt should fail to obtain the nomination in the early balloting could not be definitely determined. The sentiment against Roosevelt was small in numbers, but vigorous.

Repeal Plank of Democratic Party

Chicago, June 30—The Democratic repeal plank on prohibition to be adopted in the platform by this convention as a result of rejection of the mere resubmission proposal by a vote of 934¾ to 213¾, early today follows:

"We favor the repeal of the 18th amendment.

"To effect such repeal, we demand that the Congress immediately propose a constitutional amendment to truly representative conventions in the States called to act solely on that proposal.

"We urge the enactment of such measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the states.

"We demand that the federal government effectively exercise its powe. to enable the states to effectively protec themselves against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws.

"Pending repeal, we favor immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other bever. ges of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the Constitution and to provide therefrom a proper and needed revenue."

The text of the resubmission plank that was killed by the overwhelming vote was:

"That the Congress immediately propose to truly representative conventions in the states, called to meet solely on the proposal, a repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"In the event of repeal we urge that the Democratic party cooperate in the enactment of such measures in the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic under complete supervision and control by the states and that the federal government effectively exercise its power to protect states against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws."

Ohioans Lead in Whist League

Cleveland, June 30 (AP)—Ohio has won another contest of the American Whist League congress here last night.

S. D. Fried of Cleveland and Charles Wright of Lisbon, Ohio, were declared the winners in the "Minneapolis Trophy" contest, after tieing with J. P. Richardson of Hanover, N. H., and Dr. E. Elliott of New York on match and trick points.

Mrs. George Jeremiah of New York and Mrs. J. C. Mott of Cleveland won the ladies' trophy by a wide margin.

Let's All Help the Legion Help Its Own

For it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that, an' "Chuck him out, the brute!"
But it's "Saviour of 'is country" when the guns begin to roll.
Then it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that, and "Tommy, 'ow's your soul?"
But it's "Thin red line of 'eroes" when the drums begin to roll.
—Rudyard Kipling.

You're right, Britannia's warrior bard, 'tis the same upon this side.
The boys who paid the price in full, who fought and bled and died—
The ones we cheered so loudly for, when the band went marching by.
The ones we called, "Our heroes brave," when they went forth to die—
Now lay forgotten in their graves, or toss on beds of pain,
Ignored by us, who have no thought, save pleasure, pelf and gain.

The other day, in Waltham town, we saw there, selling flowers,
To help disabled buddies out, a soldier stand for hours,
Unheeded, disdained by everyone, and a tear crept in our eye,
As we watched that jesting, thoughtless throng all pass that soldier by.
Oh! How can we so soon forget? How can we banish care
And thoughts of those who bore the Flag in the Hell of Over There?

Thank God, the Vets together stand, and unite to help their own
And lasting prove the comradeship that Over There was sewn.
Tonight the Crosscup-Pishon Post will sound the Assembly call
For all of us to fall in line for those brothers of us all
Who gave their all, unstintingly, in the Hell of Over There
That nothing ill should happen to those they loved so Over Here.
(Reprinted by request.)

YES, these days when America is on a sterner war footing than even in the days of the World War and life to the average person is a grim battle for existence, the Legion itself must, more than ever, look out for its own. But we can all help in the great work the Crosscup-Pishon Post is doing among the sick, disabled, unemployed members of the Legion and their wives, children and dependents when they call the role at Braves Field tonight. Whirring airplanes, blaring bands, roaring musketry, tonight's great wrestling bouts, will be ushered in with all the frills that have made former Crosscup-Pishon affairs here Events, not mere shows.

HENRI DeGlane, world's heavyweight champion, vs. Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg. Gentleman Jack Washburn vs. Ed George. Two of them at least know war in all its dread significance. "All the world's a stage and in his time each man plays many parts." Today Gentleman Jack Washburn plays the part of the Bad Man of the Mat, the Villain of the Grunt and Groan. Yet not so long ago the same fellow you hoot, and jeer, even curse, because he causes your Angoras to amble all over the real estate with his rough house tactics, was a hero—an honest-to-goodness hero!

WHAT is running the gauntlet of the fans as Washburn many times has been forced to do, to going over the top at St. Mihiel? What is leaving the ring surrounded by a police escort to prevent the fans from tearing him limb from limb, to the man who went through the Hell of Over There with the shock troops of the 89th Division? Later Washburn was transferred to the air service and flew with the 91st and 101st Aerial Squadrons out of Trieste. If he wanted to, this Bad Man of the Mat could tell you many, many stories, stories of fields where the dead lay in winrows and the very soil was wet with blood. But no, that's all put behind him now, past and forgotten. Today he's only Jack Washburn, Bad Man of the Mat, who makes his livnig treating, or appearing to treat, his rivals so roughly the fans hate him and, because they hate him, come in legions to see him licked.

HENRI DeGlane, champion of the world—he, too, only too well knows what war means. When the crimson gods of war turned Europe and his beloved France into a roaring inferno young Henri DeGlane was too young—he was only 12—to become a poilu, but he was not too young to drive a truck carrying wine to the soldiers at the front and almost to be blown to Kingdom Come by a bursting shell from a German airplane that made kindling wood of his truck. Little Henri, himself, awoke in a hospital—but without a scratch. That is one thing that makes Mseu DeGlane think himself a Man of Destiny.

TWO of his brothers, Gabriel and Jean, killed in action, his mother dead from shock and hardships, himself at the tender age of 12 recruited to drive trucks into the war zone and escaping death only by a miracle. Yes, Henri DeGlane knows what war means.

WE wonder if tonight when the airplanes whirr overhead, the band plays the "Marseillaise and the roar and smoke of musketry drifts across Braves Field the memories of Henri DeGlane and Jack Washburn will carry them back to other days, other scenes. Perhaps. But they'll not want them back. Being world's heavyweight wrestling champion is lots more pleasant than being a boy truck driver in the war zone. And, for Jack Washburn, being the Bad Man of the Mat and facing a storm of boohs and jeers is a lot safer than going over the top with the shock troops of the 89th Division.

TWI CELLAR CLUBS WIN

The low teams got the break in most instances in the Boston Twi League Wednesday clashes. Dorchester turned on Cambridge in a nine inning game and copped 4 to 3. Newton Upper Falls crowned Concord, 4 to 0, and Waltham broke a third place tie with Somerville by beating the Jeffs 4 to 3.

Allston will have a chance to boost its stock as first half champion if it can knock off Somerville at Smith Field, Allston, tonight. A victory for Allston and another victory for the leaders in the Cambridge game at Allston on Sunday would clinch the pennant.

Olympic Tank Trials in Revere Meeting

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

With the lure of an Olympic berth as their incentive, New England's leading natators are expected to dish out plenty of thrills tomorrow night in the championship swimming meet to be held in the Nautical Pool, Revere.

Three events are listed as sectional Olympic tryouts for the men, while the aquatic stars of the fair sex will be splashing after three N. E. titles.

The meet has drawn the entries of all the leading stars of the section and plenty of fine contests are expected.

The 1500 meters swim for men promises to be the feature of the evening. Frank Casey and William Nolan of the Boston Boys' Club; Ross Mowry, Providence Y. M. C. A.; John Stanza, Whitin C. A.; William Hamilton and Hector Mackenzie, Cambridge Y. M. C. A.; Edward Cronin, unattached, and William Squires, Gordon Connelly, Sam Fifield, and William Champion, B. S. A., will face the starter.

Basil Francis, B. S. A. national junior A. A. U. champion, is favored to capture the 200 meters breaststroke event against strong opposition. A representative field is entered in the 100 meters freestyle, with Gordon Connelly and John Meany among those favored.

Helen Johns defends her N. E. title in the 100 meters swim against Mary Doherty, Mildred Toomey and Mildred McGlynn, of the B. S. A., and Alice Bridges and Millicent Cramp of the Whitin Community Association.

Four aspirants to the throne will face Barbara Norris of Worcester, the present wearer of the crown, in the 220 yards breaststroke senior championship swim, while five entrants will battle for the third title at stake in the 100 meters freestyle junior championship.

The Daily Dozen

—By Myles T. McSweeney—

Just at the time the Red Sox batted out a victory over the Braves, a report came to the office that Sharkey was dead. One story seemed as likely as the other.

But Sharkey denied the story, and the Red Sox really defeated the Braves.

The most uncertain thing in the world is a sure thing.

But people will still go betting on horse races!

Especially when you bet on it.

Amelia Earhart was certainly up in a fog when she met Jack Sharkey. She didn't know he was world heavyweight champion.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, knows that Sharkey is champion, but he won't admit it. He says the movies lie.

Joe thinks it was all done with mirrors with Sharkey images in them.

Jacobs is also reported to believe that the World War was just a movie stunt.

But he still believes in Santa Claus and thinks his other name is Max Schmeling.

TITLE ON SPOT IN MAT FRAY TONIGHT

Magic Coin Falls for DeGlane in Go With Sonny

JACK CONWAY today tossed his famous magic coin which tipped him to pick Henri DeGlane to successfully defend his title as world's heavyweight wrestling champion against Gus Sonnenberg at Braves Field tonight.

"DeGlane has always stood up like a champion in a tough spot," said Jack.

Conway's 1932 record, recently boosted when he picked Sharkey to beat Schmeling, follows:

W	L	P.C.

By RINGSIDE

Henri DeGlane's title as world's heavyweight wrestling champion will be on the spot when he mingles with Gus Sonnenberg in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Crosscup-Pishon Post show at Braves Field tonight.

The champion ruled a 10 to 8 favorite in the betting today. The speculative element is satisfied that the Frenchman is in perfect condition. Under such conditions it is natural that the title holder should gallop to the post a favorite.

The championship wrestling bout is the feature of a show that includes aviation exhibits, military maneuvers, a battle royal between a flock of boxers and a million or so battles of mosaics as well as some vaudeville acts.

George Collides With Gentleman Jack

In addition to the title battle between DeGlane and Sonnenberg, "Gentleman" Jack Washburn, the "one man riot," will try to wreck Ed Don George, former world's champion.

Paul Bowser, who is staging the show for the Crosscup-Pishon Post, has asked Mike Crowley to furnish him with enough cops to keep the spectators from clawing Washburn. Despite "Gentleman" Jack's roughness, he cannot hope to get to first base if 15,000 to 20,000 persons start taking socks at him about the same time.

Alex MacLean, who is representing the Crosscup-Pishon Post, says the championship bout will enter the ring at 10 o'clock so as to enable out-of-town fans to get late trains.

Title Bout Referee to Be Named Tonight

Nick Lutze, Joe Malcewicz, Al Morelli, Charley Strack, Jim Browning, "Bibber" McCoy and other mat stars will also appear.

The referee for the DeGlane-Sonnenberg bout will be named by Bowser just before the big fellows enter the ring.

The air show is expected to produce all kinds of thrills. There will be stunt flying, military formations and pursuit exhibitions.

Captain Richard Anthony of Troop B of the 11th Cavalry will be in charge of the mimic warfare.

The five boys in the battle royal on the same bill will be out general. Only blackjacks are barred.

It's a great show, and the profits will go to help the war destroyed and members of their families.

HIGH INNINGS

Saturday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday
7	2	4	8

(Big Innings Game copyrighted in its entirety, 1932 by T. A. Robertson. All rights reserved.)

The Boston Evening American BIG INNINGS contest is in its second week. Hundreds of fans have sent in estimates for the second week, and the race for prizes is going to be close.

Entrants are requested to read over all the rules very carefully. The coupon published today is for the week beginning Saturday, July 2.

Try your skill as an expert. It's worth money to you if you pick them right.

Let's go!

The "big innings" game is simple. It is just this:

Estimate the inning each day for six days, Sundays excluded, beginning this Saturday and ending the following Friday, in which the most runs are made by all the teams in the National and American Leagues added together. Send in your guesses before Friday midnight of each week. And the lucky ones win the money. Not the runs on any one team, but the largest total runs in the game, one inning in the two leagues.

For the readers' convenience the Boston Evening American prints below a form with the blanks for the weekly scores. It is not necessary to use this form. Every day the Evening American will carry along the totals of each inning of the two baseball leagues and the progress of the contest. Each Saturday the winning list of high innings will be printed.

Here's how the contest will be decided. As an example, the reader sends in the following guess:

Sat. Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thurs.	Fri.
3	4	6	5	9

The prizes will be awarded as follows:

Correct estimate for six days $100.

Correct estimate for first five days $50.

Correct estimate for first four days $10.

Correct estimate for last five days $50.

Correct estimate for last four days $10.

In the event of the highest number of runs should be made in two innings of one day a double combination of results will be carried and if there are more than one winner, the awards will be divided. Here are a few rules in entering the contest:

The contest is limited to the first nine innings each day.

Write your name and address in upper left hand corner of envelope when sending in your estimate. This rule is very important and MUST be followed.

Keep a copy of your estimate.

All estimates must be posted before tomorrow midnight.

Only ONE estimate can be submitted by any one person.

In the event of an open day for all 16 teams of the National and American Leagues the high inning of the day previous will be reported in the store.

Sunday games do not count. Neither will any game which does not go the legal distance (4½ innings, when home team is leading; five full innings if home team is behind).

It is not necessary to buy a copy of the Boston Evening American to enter or follow the contest. Estimates on each day's "big inning" may be sent in on any stationery, but you must follow the form given. You may follow the contest by visiting the Boston Evening American office at 5 Winthrop sq. or the public library or any reading room and looking at each day's issue.

The "big innings" contest is open to everyone without consideration or obligation, excepting employes of the Boston Evening American.

On this page is the score card, printed only for the entrants' convenience. Remember, it must be mailed to the "Big Inning" Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., before tomorrow, midnight, with your estimate of the big innings for each of the six days beginning with Saturday's games.

BIG INNINGS GAME

CONTEST EDITOR,
BOSTON AMERICAN, 5 WINTHROP SQUARE

Based on the records of all teams in the American and National Leagues, I estimate the largest number of runs each day for six days, beginning Saturday, July 2, and ending with the games of Friday, July 8, by all the teams in the two leagues will be scored in the following innings:

Saturday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday

(NOTE: In the blank for each day, fill in the number of the inning in which you estimate the greatest number of runs will be scored for that day by all the teams in both leagues. Fill in each day's blank before sending in your estimate. Do not put in the number of runs scored in case of overtime games. The first nine innings will count.)

Name .....

Address .....

In signing this estimate, I herewith agree to accept the decision of the judges as final.

All estimates must be in the mails or received by the Evening American by midnight of Friday, July 8.

It is not necessary to use this blank, or to be a subscriber to the Boston Evening American. Copy this form if you like.

The Daily Dozen

—By Myles T. McSweeney—

Just at the time the Red Sox batted out a victory over the Braves, a report came to the office that Sharkey was dead. One story seemed as likely as the other.

But Sharkey denied the story, and the Red Sox really defeated the Braves.

The most uncertain thing in the world is a sure thing.

But people will still go betting on horse races!

Especially when you bet on it.

Amelia Earhart was certainly up in a fog when she met Jack Sharkey. She didn't know he was world heavyweight champion.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, knows that Sharkey is champion, but he won't admit it. He says the movies lie.

Joe thinks it was all done with mirrors with Sharkey images in them.

Jacobs is also reported to believe that the World War was just a movie stunt.

But he still believes in Santa Claus and thinks his other name is Max Schmeling.

Eddie Mack denies that the Argonne A. A. A. has asked for an armistice. "We're still fighting," says Eddie.

You can't sell a vacuum cleaner at a mat show.

FRANCIS BIDS FOR STATE CROWN

By BILL GRIMES

Oyster Harbors, June 30—After watching Francis Ouimet, national amateur titleholder, play the first round of the 26th Mass. open championship here, Wiffy Cox chirped:

"Why, oh, why didn't that fellow play in the United States open championship?"

Francis, who is playing in his first state open championship since 1915, when Walter Hagen won at The Country Club, played almost perfect golf.

Although he was completely relaxed on every shot, Francis is set on winning this event. And whenever Ouimet is so keen for a victory as to pass up playing in an exhibition match with his friend Bobby Jones, he is not only a serious contender but an extremely dangerous one.

When the Bobby Jones and Jesse Guilford vs. Johnny Farrell and Roland Hancock exhibition match, which will be played this afternoon was first suggested, Francis was selected but he politely refused the offering. He said he was playing in a state championship and did not think that it would be fair to himself or the public to further burden himself.

Ouimet Great From Tee to Green

Although Francis started his second round this morning trailing Johnny Farrell, who set up a new competitive course record here with his 69, Ouimet would now be well up on the field, if he had met with the same success on the greens as Farrell.

Ouimet drove with machine-like precision. He was not only straight but his tee shots were hit for tremendous distances. His second shots were superb, for seldom did he fail to split the pins, regardless of the carry.

Ouimet should and could have been in the middle 60's for his second round.

Of the 70 strokes charged up against Ouimet yesterday, no less than 33 were putts. On the other hand, Johnny Farrell managed to get around in 25 putts. From tees to greens, Ouimet required only 37 shots against 44 for Farrell.

Ouimet Playing Best Golf of Tourney

Of course, one round of a 72-hole championship does not determine the winner any more than one swallow indicates the arrival of summer but, judging from what transpired yesterday, Francis Ouimet is playing the best golf in this classic.

Unlike the general run of amateurs in competition against seasoned professionals, there is no danger of Francis cracking.

With few exceptions, the favorites came through in fine style. Johnny Farrell is setting the pace, but Ouimet and Joe Turnesa are right on his heels, with 70 and 71 respectively. Wiffy Cox, Dave Hackney, Herman Barron, Mike Turnesa and Tony Manero are all deadlocked with 72's.

Bobby Cruickshank, a great little scout, is five strokes in arrears of Farrell, but he is still dangerous.

After the second round has been finished this afternoon, the field will be reduced to the low scorers and then there will be a merry battle on Friday, when the survivors will play the final 36 holes.

Dodgers Shift Box Staff in Minor Deal

New York, June 30 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the shifting of two pitchers on their minor league "farms" at Jersey City and Hartford, Ct.

John Krider, righthand pitcher, who won 18 games and lost 4 at Hartford last season, has been graduated from the Eastern League's class A to the AA rating of Jersey City in the International League. He replaces Phil Gallivan, also a righthanded, who drops back from Jersey City to Hartford.

Both had trials with the Dodgers this spring.

Holy Cross Star to Coach at St. John's

Worcester, June 28 (AP)—Phil O'Connell of Brockton, brilliant Holy Cross football and baseball star who was graduated from college two weeks ago, today signed a contract to return here as athletic coach at St. John's high school.

DIVING FOR OPEN PEARLS AT OYSTER HARBORS

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK

These three linksmen are in the golfing lime-light, at the Mass. Open title play at Oyster Harbors. Cruickshank had a 74 in the first round. Turnesa took 72. Ross, famed links architect who laid out Oyster Harbors, is at the tourney. He won the Mass. Open title in 1905. And still shoots fine golf.

DONALD J. ROSS

Mr. Boston

—By JACK CONWAY—

GRAHAM McNAMEE, who did his best to try to convince radio listeners that Max Schmeling defeated Jack Sharkey, will not be used to help broadcast the Democratic Convention at Chicago. This is the first time since radio has gone over, McNamee has not been on the job during a Democratic Convention. McNamee says his connection with the Ed Wynn program keeps him out of Chicago.

If McNamee were at Chicago, he might have the Al Smith delegates yelling for Hoover.

Mr. Boston

I have not yet been able to find out if the judge who granted Mrs. Graham McNamee a divorce was one of the unfortunates who listened in on the Broadcast of the Sharkey - Schmeling bout. If so, he may have been trying to even up the score. Judges are that way at times.

I IMAGINE Jack Sharkey could even forgive McNamee and Coe for the injustice they did him as he listened to the cheers of the great crowd at the sports carnival for the unemployed at Braves Field. No champion was ever greeted with more enthusiasm.

THE MOVING pictures are what ruined the arguments of those persons who tried to make out that Sharkey didn't give Schmeling a shellacking. The bout was not even close as is clearly shown by the pictures.

EDDIE MACK plans to match Ad Zachow of Dover, N. H., and Oddone Piazza, Italian middleweight, for his feature ten-round bout at Fenway Park on next Tuesday night. Vittorio Livan of the Phil Buccola stable will take on the best available opponent in another scrap.

KEEP YOUR eyes on Zachow. He looks like a comer.

"GENTLEMAN" JACK WASHBURN gave us a buzz on the telephone and stated that the $10,000 forfeit we have been holding can be posted for a finale between himself and the winner of the DeGlane-Sonnenberg bout at the Wigwam tonight. Washburn has given up hope of Jim Londos meeting him, and so is shooting at DeGlane and Sonny.

OF COURSE if Ed Don George puts the skids under Washburn tonight you can give "Gentleman" Jack to the Indians, or better still, give him a railroad ticket back to California over the Santa Fe.

DUFFY LEWIS, as an umpire at the Red Sox-Braves game, was still playing left field for the Red Sox.

I THINK THE crowd was glad to see the Sox win. Not that it is not strong for the Braves, but because it felt a win might start the Sox going places. The Braves have already arrived, and everybody would like to see the Sox bust loose with a flock of victories.

JOLLEY AND Alexander are big enough to battle Primo Carnera, I like the way these giants whack the old agate.

I'LL BE seing you at Braves Field tonight. Who do you like, the Frenchman or Sonny?

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Earl Whitehill, Tigers—Outpitched three Cleveland hurlers and knocked in two runs with three singles.

Joe Sewell, Yankees—Hit two home runs and a single to help beat the Senators.

Gus Mancuso, Cardinals—His two doubles and a single drove in four runs against Cincinnati.

Hollis Thurston, Dodgers—Won his sixth straight game, shutting out the Phils, 7 to 0, on five scattered hits.

Sea Captain Interpreter for Many Olympic Teams

Los Angeles, June 30 (U98)—There stands beside the portal of the Olympic village, a tall, tawny man. A man of the sea, you would say, and rightly.

During his 47 years at sea, of which 18 were passed on the bridge as master of ocean liners, Captain J. E. Strasser, of Alsace-Lorraine, went out beyond the bottoms to every country on the globe.

And now these countries of the far corners of the earth come to Captain Strasser.

Speaking more than 12 languages and their dialects, this old dog of the sea has been retained as official interpreter for the Olympic teams of the following nations: England, France, Germany, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Belgium, Switzerland, Austria, Spain, Portugal, Czecho-Slavia, Yugo-Slavia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, all of South and Central America including Mexico, French Indo-China, Dutch East Indies and Japan.

Revere K. of C. Nine Beats Dillon Club

Revere Council, K. of C., went into a tie for first place with Hyde Shoe for the first half championship of the Suburban Twilight League by defeating the Andy Dillon Club of Cambridge, 8 to 2, at Revere.

Revere and Hyde have two games left to play in the first half, with Revere entertaining Malden tomorrow night and Hyde visiting Arlington Pals.

BOUCHER NEW PILOT FOR BRUIN CUBS

The management of the Bruin Cubs of the Canadian-American Hockey League announced today that George Boucher, Chicago Blackhawks' defense player, would be player-manager next year.

Boucher will succeed the successful Eddie Powers, who is reported to be slated for a major league managerial berth with either the New York Americans or the Detroit Falcons.

Powers Very Popular With Boston Fans

Eddie Powers, past manager and coach of the Bruin Subs, was the most popular hockey manager Boston ever had.

Coming here from Canada, he immediately secured a wealth of friends and was able to get the best out of his squad of players.

In 1931 he had the Bruin Cubs battling in the play-off.

This past season he did wonders with his squad, which was shifted every other game by the management of the Bruins.

Every time the Bruins were in want of a forward defense player or a goalie, Art Ross would step in and snatch a Cub.

At the end of the season Powers was given two receptions, one by the players and then later by the Boston hockey scribes.

Adams Has Not Received Boucher Contract

Charles F. Adams, owner of the Bruins, said today:

"I have extended George Boucher a contract to come as player-manager of the Bruin Cubs. As yet, I have received no reply, so cannot confirm report on his acceptance, although I know that he can be of great service to the Cubs."

You Don't Need Brains If You're Born Lucky

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

(The fable of a gent who knew nothing of horses but had a lot of luck).

The only old-timers who ever made money following the horses were the cab drivers. They were sure of at least their fare.

Among the moderns, there are only a few who clean up . . . and that for a slender salary.

So maybe it's news or something to learn of a Boston man who didn't know the difference between an oat and a bale of hay a year ago, who has made a small fortune on the ponies.

As in all good stories told in the wrong order of time, we must go back a little. We will go back as far as 1914, and the first character we'll pick is Louis "Poco" Bennett, known wherever the ponies leave a hoof-print and wherever gamblers use money in talking instead of their tongues.

Bennett inherited an immense fortune on the death of his father. In 1914 he cleaned up $100,000 betting on the Braves, who, in that year, took the World Series in four straight games from the Athletics.

At an early age, "Poco" was seized with the urge to follow the horses. But not as a cab driver. He not only bet on the bang-tails, but he bought a stable. The nags turned out to be something like Republican prosperity. They were always on the way, but they never seemed to arrive. At least, not in the race in which they were entered.

Things went from bad to worse with "Poco's" runners. They never won when they should. In fact, it is doubtful if they ever won when they shouldn't. Last winter found Bennett with eight horses, and not enough money to pay their feed bill.

Sheldon Fairbanks, once general manager of the Garden, entered the picture at this point in the story. "Poco" met Fairbanks in Florida. Fairbanks was interested in horses. "Poco" told him all he knew, which was plenty. Fairbanks got the fever.

To raise a few needed dollars, "Poco" and Fairbanks entered into a more or less informal agreement to try their luck on the tracks.

To Bennett's amazement, his horses, which formerly ran like Barney Google's "Spark Plug" (the other way), began to nose their way into the money. In a short time, Fairbanks and Bennett were winning modest purses and doing a little betting on the side.

They picked up a pony by the name of Gold Step for $3000. Gold Step began to step right into the gold under the magic guidance of Bennett and Fairbanks, and in recent months has won close to $18,000. The other day Fairbanks was offered $25,000 for the horse. He refused, and stands to clean up plenty before the season is over.

So we find Mr. Bennett, who knew all about horses, unable to make them earn their daily fodder. And Mr. Fairbanks, who knew nothing about horses, getting back dollar for oat on his investment.

This story does not disprove the old formula for success: Read good books, don't watch the clock and marry the boss' daughter.

It only shows that if you were Sheldon Fairbanks and "Poco" Bennett, you could add a plus and a minus and show a profit.

(Now, children, be quiet, and some day Uncle may tell you the story about the "acrobatic flea" which could fall any way their master wished.)

LOUGHRAN WINS OVER HAMAS

Philadelphia, June 30—Tommy Loughran of this city gained scores with Steve Hamas here in a heavyweight fight, Loughran outscoring his youthful foe in five of the 10 rounds to take a decision.

Hamas knocked out Loughran some time ago in their first go.

The fight was fairly close, with one judge voting for Hamas, while the referee and the other arbiter cast their ballots for Loughran.

Tommy's boxing skill, with his left hand keeping Hamas off, stood him in good stead. Loughran also used his right to advantage, though he didn't hurt Hamas very much.

Signal Spier Is Hartford Winner

Hartford, June 30—Signal Spier, owned by G. F. McCarthy of Pueblo, Colo., staged the best performance of the Bay State circuit racing here by pacing the mile in 2:06¾, over a half-mile track in winning the 2:12 pace.

The Colorado flier beat Azure Volo in the second and third heats.

COST YANKS $20,000 TO SIGN CHARLIE DEVENS

BRAVES FAIL TO OUT-BID RUPPERT

Society comes high.

It cost the Yankees $20,000, according to reliable reports, to persuade Charlie Devens, Harvard mound ace and a member of Boston's "400," to sign a contract today.

Devens, the first local social registerite ever to enter the big leagues, was given a bonus of $10,000 for his John Hancock and is guaranteed a salary of $5000 for the remainder of the season and a cut of $5000 in the world's series purse, providing the New Yorkers win the pennant.

The document also contained a clause that the Crimson star will not be farmed out to any minor league club this season.

No wonder the Braves lost out in their bidding for the young man. Judge Fuchs is generous but no magnate with the exception of Col. Jake Ruppert, Yankee owner, could afford to gamble $20,000 on a collegiate hurler.

Furthermore, it is against Manager Bill McKechnie's policy to promise any rookie that he won't be farmed out. The Tribal pilot knows how few and far between are college players who can step into the big show and make good from the start, and he feels it is unfair to the club, himself and the player to keep one around who would be better off developing and gaining experience in the "bushes."

McManus Sees Hope for His Cellar Sox

A fair trial and a few ball players are all that Martin Joseph McManus needs to reach the heights as a big league manager.

Knowledge of the game, common sense, optimism and unbounded courage are all part of the new Red Sox boss' equipment, unless we err in interpreting his words, and when any diamond leader with these qualities fails to click, the fault must lie with his hired hands or with his luck.

Marty was handed the toughest baseball assignment ever when he was appointed successor to John "Shano" Collins without word or warning 15 days ago. And fate hasn't been any too kind to him since. Tom Oliver is in a Detroit hospital, with an infected finger. Ed Durham is confined to the bed with an attack of the grippe, Johnny Watwood has a bad shoulder. Henr. Johnson is convalescing at his home in Bradentown, Fla., and Hal Rhyne's ankle still is weak.

Yet Marty hasn't a complaint or alibi. What's past is gone. He looks only to the future and sees his lowly outfit getting its share of the breaks, steadily improving and making a gallant attempt to overcome the seventh-place White Sox, 11½ games away.

Listen:

"The Red Sox as they line up at present have no business in the cellar," Marty declared. "If we had had Johnson, Alexander, Jolly and the rest of our recent acquisitions from the start, we would be a notch or two higher in the standing than we are today, and we may still get out of the basement despite the lead the entire field gained on us before we secured these players.

"Win or lose, you can always count on us hustling. Defeats and erratic playing are all part of the game, but loafing isn't. All my charges fully agree with me on this or they wouldn't be on the club. Whenever we fail to win, it won't be because we haven't hustled, fought and played to the very limit of our ability."

YEOMANS IS OFF HARVARD CREW

Yeomans, who rowed in No. 2 seat against Yale last week in the Harvard-ale crew race, has been excused by Coach Charles Whitesides of The Crimson navy.

The position left vacant by Yeomans will be filled by Charles Hovey of Chestnut Hill, who comes up from No. 4 seat in the junior varsity shell to No. 2 in the varsity boat.

This shift was brought about by desire of Yeomans' to take up research work at Colorado. Yeomans' home is in California and he is making a biological survey, and the extra work this summer will help toward his degree.

Shifting thee rew in this manner makes the Harvard eight an all-Greater Boston crew.

Incidentally, Cassedy was released from the Naval Reserves. He will be back in the shell when the crew go out for another trial.

This morning the Harvard crew went down ther iver to Harvard Bridge and returned in a prettice cast.

Ray Hunt Pilots Falcon to Victory

Marblehead, June 30—Ray Hunt skippered Edward Abbott's Falcon to a win over Harold Wheelock's Cero Mio as a trio of 25-raters led the fleet of 44 craft in the Corinthian Yacht Club's mid-week race off the Head.

George Poor's Woodcock squeezed out a three-second win over a fleet of four Herreshoff S boats, while the other winners were J. M. Hunnewell's M-H craft, Endeavor, and Paul Jacobs a 14-foot T boat, Rita II.

The winners in the Brutal Beast group were: First division, Eleanor Morss's Bantam; second division, Foster Brown's Chunky, and third division, Janet Pierce's Maybe.

Diamond Dust

BY JOE CASHMAN

Ed Gallagher, crack Boston College southpaw, has been signed by the Red Sox. Several big league clubs made offers to the Maroon and Gold star before he decided to cast his lot with the Fenway flock. Manager Marty McManus is badly in need of mound talent at present, with Ed Durham and Henry Johnson on the sick list, and Gallagher promises to see much service as a relief flinger in the very near future.

EDDIE GALLAGHER

The Sox have also acquired Larry Boerner, a young right-hander from Washington, D. C. This young man had a tryout with the Cardinals this spring and held the Athletics scoreless for five innings in his only start. He then came up with a sore arm and was released.

The Yanks made it two in a row over the Senators, winning 6 to 5, with the help of two home runs by Joe Sewell, but they failed to increase their 8½-game lead in the fleet of 44 craft in the Corinthian Yacht Club's mid-week race, as the second-place Tigers smothered the Indians, 13 to 4.

Irving "Bump" Hadley, Lynn's pride, chalked up another win for the Browns at the expense of his former mates, the White Sox. He allowed only four hits while turning in a 6-to-1 triumph, and the Mound City crew is now only one game back of the fifth-place Cleveland entry.

Hollis Thurston's mound magic carried him to his sixth straight victory as he blanked the Phillies, 7 to 0, to put the Dodgers in a fifth-place tie with the Quakers. Hack Wilson hit his 15th home run of the season and Joe Stripp also hit for the circuit in the contest.

OKAPI FIRST IN STAKE RACE

New York, June 30 (US)—Okapi, a son of the fleet Eternal, captured the honors in the Canarsie Claiming Stakes, at Aqueduct course and the victory was due to the energetic ride of Silvio Coucci.

To add glory to his conquest Coucci put it over on his keen rival, Hank Mills, by a neck. This slight margin brought $5675 to the Brookmeade stable which owns Okapi.

Okapi was a hot 9 to 10 favorite. This was a five furlong whirl down the hairpin course.

BRAVES CAN CLIMB TO N. L. PEAK TODAY

New York, June 30—The galloping Braves from Boston make their second appearance of the season here this afternoon, when they open a long road trek in a four-game series with Bill Terry's Giants.

These surprising Tribesmen from the Hub, picked to spend the season down in the vicinity of seventh place, now occupied by the New Yorkers, have a chance to go into the lead this afternoon.

If they win and the Pirates and Cubs lose the standing will be:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Boston	37	31	.544
Pittsburgh	33	28	.541
Chicago	35	31	.530

Walter "Huck" Betts, the oldest rookie in captivity, being 33, and the National League's leading pitcher will do the flinging for the invaders in the opener. Huck has won nine games and has been beaten only once, the Cubs nosing him out 2 to 1, after he had won six straight games. He has whipped the Giants three times, so the natives don't shape up as a particularly good bet this p. m.

Neither club is in the best shape for the series. Capt. Travis Jackson of the Giants is ailing and Capt. Walter Maranville of the Tribe has a sore leg which may keep him out of the opening conflict. Horace Ford, erstwhile Dodger, Red and Cardinal will play second for the visitors should Maranville be unable to perform.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

TWO HELENS IN TENNIS FINALS

Wimbledon England, June 30 (AP)—Helen Wills Moody, four times women's singles champion at Wimbledon, swept into the final round today by defeating Miss Mary Heeley, unseeded English girl, 6-2, 6-0.

Mrs. Moody will meet Helen Jacobs, a home-town rival from Berkley, Cal., in the final round.

Mrs. Moody, playing her usual powerful game, kept intact her record of not losing a set in the tournament.

Queen Mary and Prince George arrived during the play and Mrs. Moody and Miss Heeley, with the galleries of 14,000, stood at attention.

The match was played in a drizzle, which continued as Ellsworth Vines, last of the American men's singles players, went out on the court for his semi-final match with Jack Crawford, Australian ace.

Playing in a drizzle on a wet court, with Queen Mary and Prince George in the gallery of 14,000, the slim Californian capped the climax of a day that also saw Helen Wills Moody smother Mary Heeley, English girl, in the last of the women's singles semi-finals to join her fellow-townswoman from Berkeley, Helen Jacobs, in the final round.

Vines will meet the winner of the second semi-final match between Jiro Satoh, clever little Japanese, and H. W. (Bunny) Austin, England's ranking young star.

INSANITY PLEA FOR BOY LOVE SLAYER

Worcester, June 20—Temporary insanity will be the defense of Thaddeus Zakazewski, 20, who was captured in Brookline yesterday after allegedly slaying his closest friend, Walter Witkowski, 44

This announcement was made today by his attorney, Frank M. Jablonski, after the youth was arraigned in the lower court, where he pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder. He was held without bail for further hearing Wedesday

"I will ask that my client be sent to a state hospital for observation," said the lawyer.

Organs of the victim are being examined for traces of drugs

The arrested youth told of Witkowski taking headache powders and pills and giving him some which made him "feel funny."

In statements to Brookline police, Zakazewski is alleged to have said that Witkowski held a gun at his head and forced him to drive a knife into his friend's heart.

By a strange coincidence, a dead man, a victim of poisoning, was found today in the front seat of an automobile in front of the undertaking rooms in Dedham where Witkowski's body lies. He was John Samborsky, 40, of East Douglas, who was about to suffer foreclosure of property.

You can't fool the "Electric Ear"*

New TYDOL wins anti-knock road Test of 17 gasolines

Test car with analyzer and sound recording units . . . Equipment truck of the Western Electric Company . . . ready to test 17 gasolines bought in the open market.

Electric Ear GIVES VERDICT

* ELECTRIC EAR KNOCK CHART

"ELECTRIC EAR" is the popular name for the new and amazingly accurate instruments which record sound in decibels. The "Electric Ear" was perfected by the Electrical Research Products, Inc. These same super-sensitive instruments were used by the Noise Abatement Commissions of America's leading cities.

This test conducted and computed by ELECTRICAL RESEARCH PRODUCTS, INC. Subsidiary of WESTERN ELECTRIC COMPANY

	DECIBELS
NEW TYDOL	2.8
GASOLINE J	3.2
GASOLINE O	3.5
GASOLINE L	3.7
GASOLINE R	3.7
GASOLINE X	4.5
GASOLINE P	4.6
GASOLINE I	4.6
GASOLINE M	4.7
GASOLINE D	4.9
GASOLINE G	5.0
GASOLINE Q	6.0
GASOLINE C	6.4
GASOLINE F	6.9
GASOLINE A	7.1
GASOLINE K	7.2
GASOLINE N	7.7

A DECIBEL is an engineering unit denoting volume and intensity of sound. In these tests, lowest decibel rating (new Tydol) indicates best anti-knock gasoline.

A HOT engine, a heavy load, a steep hill—there's the real test of anti-knock quality. Laboratory knock ratings are apt to go hay-wire under these real road conditions—as every motorist knows.

So the new Sound Meter—the "Electric Ear" of the Electrical Research engineers—made this amazing test on the road, the first of its kind.

It caught every knock in each of 17 gasolines—all non-ethyl gasolines, all bought in the open market from road-side stations. It registered that knock. Hour after hour, for 3 days, the "Electric Ear" checked and triple-checked every gasoline.

Same car. Same load. Same speed. Same grade . . . but what a difference in knock rating! Look at the decibel chart. You'll see where the New TYDOL stands. It heads the list in real anti-knock quality.

The chart doesn't show its speed and pick-up, its instant-starting, its super-power and extra mileage. But your first trial run will show them to you—plainly.

Try it today. Against any gasoline. And get extra-fare transportation at the regular price.

30 SUMMONSES ISSUED IN BANK TRIAL

Thirty-six summonses for government witnesses were issued today by William M. Prendible, clerk of the Suffolk Superior criminal court, for appearance next Tuesday at trial of 12 defendants, indicted in connection with the investigation of the Industrial Bank & Trust Co.

The defendants who in this phase of the probe are accused of conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice in connection with complaints on the sale of stock of the closed Medford Trust Co., include John C. Hull, former speaker of the House and present director of the securities ("Blue Sky") division of the Department of Public Utilities.

Others are Edwin T. McKnight, president of the Medford Trust Co., and Frank P. Jenks, George A. Foster and Silas Waite, also attached to the Department of Public Utilities. Waite is a former Boston police officer.

The summonses were handed to Martin F. Conroy and James Connaughton, police inspectors attached to the office of Dist. Atty. Foley, with orders to serve them immediately.

Judge Hardy of the Superior Court has not yet ruled on the motion of Hull, Jenks, Foster and Waite to quash the indictments against them.

SKELETON ENDS DEATH RIDDLE

Baldwinsville, June 30—A bullet-riddled skeleton, found in a Baldwinsville pasture was believed by police today to be that of Frank L. Burns, Marlboro jewelry salesman who disappeared 28 years ago.

After a comparison of descriptions of Burns and the skeleton State Detective Edward J. Mackey today declared that he was certain the disappearance of Burns had been solved.

The disappearance of Burns on the night of December 17, 1904 from a Petersham hotel was one of the strangest cases in the history of central Massachusetts.

Burns left his home in Marlboro the day before. He told his relatives that he had appointment to sell a man named Smith $2500 worth of jewelry. He arrived at Petersham to meet Smith. He was never seen again.

Confidence

Confidence is an indefinable trust; it is the reward of years of constant adherence to honorable business ethics.

It is reposed in a store that adopts the highest standard of service and accords fair treatment to its patrons.

Such a store considers the interests of the customer first, last and all the time. It provides quality, value and style in full measure for every dollar spent.

These principles are the very bedrock of good business—they are the fundamental principles with which The C. E. Osgood Co. was endowed back in 1874; and have been strictly adhered to all during the 58 years of its existence.

This fidelity to principle is but one of the many reasons for Osgood's steady progress and unquestionable leadership in the community it serves.

It is likewise the reason why three generations of satisfied customers have unbounded confidence in this old reliable store—the enviable record of but few business enterprises.

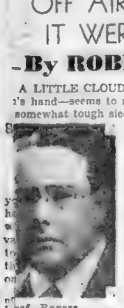
RADIO, WITH FOOTBALL OFF AIR, LOOKS AS IF IT WERE IN TROUBLE

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

A LITTLE CLOUD on the radio horizon—no bigger than a man's hand—seems to me to hint that next fall and winter may somewhat tough sledding for the radio impresarios. Relative rough sledding, I mean of course. They will probably eat and all that.



Prof. Rogers

The decision of the twelve most important football-playing eastern colleges not to broadcast their games is a distinct blow to radio prestige. The big networks will naturally have no difficulty in filling their time. They can fill the air on Saturday afternoon with accounts of games west of the Mississippi and south of the Masonandixon line. If we want football we can get it from the coast or from the Western Conference of the farm-aid states. Whether we shall have any zest in listening-in to western football when we know that great games are going on in the east, sponsored, un-broadcast and un-sung, is another question.

That radio keeps the spectator away from the stadium there be no doubt. That the broadcasting services have pretty got us into the habit of thinking that we are dependent on football, there is no doubt, either.

nother Hoover Theory Doomed

In the same way they have got us into the habit of thinking we are dependent on radio boxing. There is a kind of thrill low-by-blow or play-by-play descriptions, properly done. Ich makes print look cold and dead and considerably belated. the repercussion of the Schmeling-Sharkey bout has been that radio boxing, already obviously wobbling and uncer- may not unlikely receive its death-blow along with radio ball. It is very expensive; it undoubtedly cuts down receipts; at present it is suffering from the very bad black eye given Messrs. McNamee's and Coe's broadcast, which was a bit too pathetic for the subsequent facts to be easily explained away.

If radio fans who have come to depend on radio sport events them taken away, they are going to be peeved. In which case boomerang of our American policy will be manifest. Mr. over's theory of private control of the air by commercial sta- running on advertising revenue, is a fine theory in boom times. In hard times it may become somewhat more of a liability an asset.

eady there are signs of a thinning out of the big sustain- ograms. Entertainment values on the radio are not as rich rurity as they were, say, a year ago. There are not so many rate half-hour programs with novelties and big names. I to note a definite increase in the number of rather mediocre inute stretches, notable neither for big names nor quality en- ainment.

o Much Fifth-Rate Talent

And on local stations a good deal of the stuff that is filling minds me of the early days when the program director had mb the suburbs for free amateur talent in order to keep his on going at all. Those were the days of the East Roxbury es' Literary and Harmonica Club, in programs of old-world songs—Way Down Upon the Swanee River, Up the Street, and e Echoes.

Those days, we had hoped, had gone forever. But a sensitive turning the dials during the local day-time programs, cannot reckeve that the voluntary contributors are in again (I do not, ly speaking, turn the dials with my ear, but the sentence may wh- en). In short, there seems to be a definite increase in 15- ute stretches sponsored by small-time products and offering rate entertainment. And since it is clear that, generally ding, the shorter the radio period the larger the proportion of rtising, the advertising question is becoming more acute.

nyway, the radio moguls have got us accustomed to things vid large way. They showed an enormous amount of enterprise ingenuity. We have come to take for granted an hour or a hour feature full of expensive talent, big names, big bands—supporting artists, count 'em, 50—and so on. We have got to championship bouts and big football games

Well, football has closed down temporarily. If attendance up this fall, the ban well may be permanent. The next fight ter will think twice before he allows the radio to gum up ir with broadcasts by announcers and literary men who do e eye to eye with the sports writers. And if the cost of radio tising—which is good-will advertising rather than informs- advertising—drives any more of the big shots off the air, the ons will have to choose between giving us snippets of cheap ainment for what revenue there is in it or continuing to en- us at their own expense in the style to which they have n accustomed. And that is going to cost them money.

grams'll Have to Be Good

In the long run they may see that the American system so tly fostered by Mr. Hoover and the rugged individualists is ll, nor always, beer and skittles.

The emptying moving picture theaters may be suffering from epression. They may also be suffering from sheer boredom ed in the public by too rich and varied a fare, too many pic- , changed too often, resulting in surfeit. Radio is, I think, r something of the sort. We do not bother any more to twist hals for the ordinary programs that used to tickle us. Today ns to be something that promises to be pretty good to keep us hing the stock.

If we are not to miss the Harvard-Yale game and the Dart- th-Brown game and the Army and the Navy on a Saturday rnoon, the radio people will have to hump themselves to find omething to take their place. I doubt if Michigan and Iowa Illinois are going to fill the bill. Notre Dame, yes, but not teams we know nothing about. Nor Stanford, nor Georgia, as an eastern team is playing, too. The radio people have n us champagne tastes and they can't expect us to be satis- with beer.

And it is an old adage that nobody is quite so critical of a trical performance as the man who got in on a free pass. May- before all this is through the big shots in radio will wish they let us pay license fees and get our entertainment without ad- ising.

DR. COWLES IN REFUSAL TO QUIT CHURCH

Former Boston Psychiatrist Ignores Warning to Stop Mysterious Healing Service

Dr. Edward S. Cowles, former Boston psychiatrist, continued to preside over the "body and soul" clinic established by the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, pastor of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, despite threats of the vestrymen to close the New York clinic.

Warning that the vestrymen of the famous church are moving toward abolishing the clinic has been sent to Dr. Cowles now the son-in-law of William Gibbs McA[illegible] but who was divorced in 1915 by the late Florence S. Cowles, a [illegible] society belle.

We have had so much weather here lately that the editor told me to hop over to the weather bureau to see how they did things.

How fast is the wind blowing? What's the speed—in miles per hour? This is the machine by which this information is collected and given to you daily. George A. Loveland, senior meteorologist, is reading the anemometer.

This barograph in the weather bureau indicates air pressure in all sections of the country. Then when direction of air currents is known this aids in telling you whether rain or sunshine is on the way. M. T. Nesmith, junior meteorologist, is recording.

When recordings are made from all machines of record—a map is prepared by Edward Doble, Haverhill, junior observer.

as he stepped from a taxicab at the Somerset st. entrance to the courthouse.

Taken before Judge Qua in police court, he was asked by his counsel:

"Are you represented by a lawyer?"

"No"

"Have you anything to say with regard to being held in $50,000 bail?"

"Nothing."

Later he was asked by a reporter if he thought his friends would provide bail.

WILLING TO BE JAILED

"No," he said. "I don't want it. Jail here is O. K. with me."

Court Clerk William M. Prendible read an order holding him "from day to day and time to time until the trial of Samuel Gallo is completed to testify as to what you know."

Led by Deputy Sheriff John McHugh and Court Officer William Griffin, he went to the detention pen, with a crowd trailing. Gangi shook hands with Deputy Sheriff Charles Heintz, who had him in his custody during his trips.

"What were you doing in the Italian navy?" he was asked.

"I was a cook at an ammunition dump where there were 25,000 reservists in training," he said. "Work all day and hard work. Not like here. In jail here they give you pajamas and sheets, meat every day and coffee three times a day.

GAINS WEIGHT ON TRIP

"Over there there weren't any pajamas or sheets and we worked till noon without any breakfast. I've been eating five or six times a day aboard the ship to make up. I had dropped 25 pounds but I put on 18 on the way over.

"The only thing that's worrying me is that when I returned to Italy I neglected to notify the draft department. I want to come back to this country for good some day and I hope that technically won't prevent it. I don't want to have to come in on a quota. Why, I was here ten years. This is the only country to live in."

Gangi expressed sorrow over the death of Police Inspector Joseph Lyons, who was killed in an auto accident while searching for Philomena Romano. He had known "Pat Joe" in the North End.

NAMES SWITCHED

This was only one of many circumstances which stamp the Callo-Gangi-Fantasia case as unique in Massachusetts jurisprudence, with another trial to come, starting next week. Even Gangi's name changed. COURT DECIDES POLICIES VOID, AGAINST AVERY

Judge Albert E. Avery of the Quincy District Court has no power to fix the salary of his son, Edward Avery of Braintree, as chief probation officer at $3000, when the established sum for a beginner is $2400.

The full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court yesterday upheld the ruling of Judge Wilford D. Gray of the Superior Court in dismissing Avery's suit for $207.90 against the Norfolk County commissioners, as a difference in pay.

Avery was a court officer in the Quincy District Court and upon the death of Francis J. Bahy chief probation officer, Judge Avery attempted to put the position and requested that his salary would be fixed a year the same as Fahy had been receiving.

The county commissioners contended that a man should not start at the same salary as a man who had held the position for many years.

Insurance policies on the life of William Webber of Brookline for approximately $2000 taken out by him from the New York Life Insurance Co., dated December 22, 1926, were illegally procured by the applicant did not tell the facts connected with his health in making them out, according to a decision handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

On December 4, 1928, the court found that Webber had a heart at age. The court found that Webber did not mention this fact in his application made 21 days after.

The finding of the court reverses the decision of the district court.

"We think it clear that Webber concealed these material facts with the intent of deceiving the insurance company, and the finding of the district court to the contrary was clearly wrong," reads the finding of the Circuit Court.

The finding was made by Judges George Bingham, Scott Wilson and James J. Morton, Jr.

4 FACE COURT AS SWINDLERS

Three women and a man will be arraigned in municipal court today charged with conspiracy to steal and larceny in connection with the alleged swindling of Mrs. Annie Sachs, 58, a widow, of Hutchins st., Roxbury out of her life savings of $1900.

Those under arrest are: Joseph Mendelowitz, 52, of Wayland st., Roxbury, Mrs. Sylvia Kalko, 45, same address, and Mrs. Fannie Colman, 50, of Kingsdale st., Dorchester. Police also have a warrant for Mrs. Mendelowitz, who was not arrested but was ordered to appear today.

Police claim the four persuaded Mrs. Sachs to withdraw the money from a bank, which they told her was failing, and put it in a mortgage on the Mendelowitz home. It is alleged Mrs. Colman accompanied her to the bank and took the money as soon as it was withdrawn.

CAN KINGS RETURN WITHOUT THEIR PRINCES?

By GILBERT SELDES

IN HIS RECENT COLLECTION of essays John Maynard Keynes suggested that capitalism weakened itself because it introduced into industry, commerce, and finance, a principle alien to its own nature: the idea of hereditary power. That principle it would seem, came from royalty. Now a correspondent (who really is one professionally, having covered all of Europe for American papers and most of America for European papers suggests to me that the hereditary principle may have been the primal mistake of royalty itself. Take another look at royalty, he says me, assuming I saw my sojourn in Europe will give me the chance, and he begs me to distinguish between the royalty which gets its names into the papers and the real thing, which may be a dictatorship.

GILBERT SELDES

"Talk Mills"

It is worth your consideration," he writes, "for the parliamentary or representative form of government is certainly breaking down. It always does in times of trouble. You know as well as I do that during the Great War the fighting nations were governed, not by locally elected representatives of the people, but by generals, premiers or presidents, each one speaking for the entire nation. While Chief of Staff, or Quartermaster General, Ludendorff 'ran' Germany, and ran her ragged. Clemenceau governed France, and before the war was over, even 'The Mother of Parliaments' had abdicated in favor of Lloyd George. As Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy President Wilson was constitutionally the autocrat of the United States. I need not mention the lesser powers. It was almost inevitable. There is an old Danish proverb which runs to this effect (in the original it rhymes. Once when the Devil wanted nothing to happen he invented the idea of a committee. It is the same with legislative assemblies. 'Talk Mills' they call them in Sweden.

This is a homely illustration, but it brings out my point that what [illegible] highly. The same applies for the [illegible] of government. Well so far, but people got tired of kings and threw them out. Very true, but compared to the duration of history, that was only recently. In that sense even the English Parliament is a new institution. As for Congress on that schedule, it was organized only a few days ago. The Scottish 'Riksdag' will celebrate its 500th anniversary in 1935, while the known history of Sweden readily goes back at least 1250 B.C. and of Scotch people [illegible] long before [illegible] the Persians, the Chinese, the Arabs or the Jews. Sarah Seeks Means to Aid Lynn

What Has Gone Before

Lynn Harding, young and pretty is ambitious for a career in the Seacoast Bank and Trust Company. She loves Tom Shepard secretary to one of the vice-presidents, but will not marry him feeling they both must make their careers first. Then Lynn meets Ludwig Dewitt, a prominent lawyer through Sarah Dennet her chief at the bank. Dwight is attracted to Lynn and invites her and Sarah to his apartment for dinner. Lynn's room mate Jennie Le Grande, a modern woman who is eager to experience everything, meets Jennie and Tom at Dwight's party. Tom does not enjoy the party and he has a quarrel with Lynn afterwards. They make up and she visits his apartment.

"Sarah, I don't believe it."

"It's true," said Sarah stiffly, offended.

"I'm sorry. I didn't mean that, Lynn said instantly. "But why, Sarah? I can't understand it. I hadn't heard."

"Why? It's obvious enough," Sarah told her. "We are going through a time of depression; unemployment is on the increase. The bank is going to keep everyone it possibly can—single people, heads of families. But when a woman is married and her husband holds a position here, the bank has decided that the woman must go. If a married woman is the sole support of her family, or is widowed or has children, that is different. It isn't difficult to [illegible]

"Then we'll have to wait," she said.

Sarah said, turning her eyes to the stricken face, "I'm sorry, Lynn."

SHE ANSWERED HARSHLY

Lynn answered [illegible] "Oh, sorry! But where does that get us?"

"I suggested Sarah, distressed—if you want to take the chance—"

"Do you mean, get married and not let anyone know about it except you? I mean, here at the bank?" asked Lynn, life returning to face and lips in a revival of hope.

"Yes, no," Sarah answered slowly. "I didn't mean that. You know that you couldn't keep it quiet long. It isn't possible." She thought, and Lynn knew that her own loyalty to her employers would not permit her to be party to the virtual deception. "No, I meant if you and Tom want to go ahead and marry and then see—"

Lynn shook her head. "I don't think so. There would be much happiness in it would threaten[illegible] for the show to fail, wondering every day if I were going to be let out?"

Sarah argued no more and, as Lynn made no motion to finish her luncheon, called for the check.

Bashfulness Keeps Man Single

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT'S NOT EASY to be sure but I have before me a letter from a young man—or, at least he has been young when he wrote of new-found bashfulness. He's O. K. women now, I recommend for women now, him.

Married life is fine, he says, but he says, can't get a wife when I most crave her. I'm in for pretense if I ask for a rendezvous. When I'm with them—

I suppose to use him as a case for the evident purpose of his letter. He's a victim of his own inhibitions, and he is trying to find a cure and a way out.

Is this a case of an introverted neurotic? Or have these things come to be the rule rather than the exception? Would you be willing to be interviewed on the subject? If so, write me. Address letters to Beatrice Fairfax, Boston Evening American, 212 West 18th st., New York City. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

CASE IN POINT

I know of such a case. It is the story of a man who all his life was very much afraid of his mother and her children, but he would not admit it even to himself. He was a fine, clean, upstanding man, but he was afraid of women.

He was in the habit of [illegible] He would [illegible] He would [illegible] He would

NEW SELLING IS ABSORBED IN WALL ST.

New York, June 30—New selling was absorbed in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today after an early upturn. The market ended the first half of the year with prices still dragging along the average lows reached a month ago.

The list had a momentary upturn in the early trading as the Bank of England discount rate cut and the Democratic repeal plank generated a little enthusiasm here and there, but scattered selling soon stopped out.

STIFFENS A LITTLE

Gains were lost and a number of shares sagged 1 to 3 points under yesterday's close. The list stiffened a little in the early afternoon.

Selling of Du Pont and National Biscuit seemed to precipitate the early slump. Both reached new lows. Biscuit getting down mote than 2 points and Du Pont nearly 3. Procter & Gamble soon joined the decline, registering a similar loss, and Air Reduction dropped 2.

Homestake Mining had one of its wide movements, losing nearly 8. Early gains of a point in Case, Allis Chalmers, Case and American Tobacco "B" were converted into losses of like extent.

Union Pacific was off 2. Among the scattered wet stocks, gains of 1 to 2 points appeared in Crown Cork, Anchor Glass, American Commercial Alcohol, and others, but these were considerably modified later. The list was up fractionally from the lows by early afternoon.

HELP FROM LAUSANNE

The early rise in the market was undoubtedly helped by more favorable reports from Lausanne. Yesterday there had been a fear that the conference would have to be postponed because of the seemingly irreconcilable stands of the Germans and French.

International banking quarters have been apprehensive that a breakdown of conference might precipitate a moratorium on German private debt. But bankers say Wall Street is prepared for such an eventuality.

Bank of England discount rate cut to 2 per cent from 2½ was viewed as constructive, although interest in the matter largely ended there, since it was felt that it could have little if any influence internationally unless the pressing problem of Lausanne are settled.

Final approval of the I. C. C. of the loan to the frisco to meet interest due tomorrow was pointed out as a favorable development of more immediate bearing on domestic affairs.

Selling in the market appeared to be to some extent of a special nature. DuPont was offering in some volume, and one theory offered in brokerage quarters was that bank loan collateral was being liquidated.

Dividend uncertainties were mentioned in some cases as prompting selling, although in the case of national Biscuit a regular payment was recently ordered.

Parts of the Democratic platform calling for sound monetary and budgetary policies naturally met with favor in Wall St., while such planks as those calling for strict enforcement of anti-trust laws, and regulation of holding companies were of course unpopular in some quarters.

Young Is Extolled as New Style Leader

New York, June 30—Owen D. Young is a prototype of the new style business leader who will, we hope, be more common in the coming decades.

A statesman in business, the chairman of the General Electric Company was once described by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as a public servant, although he took no office.

Experienced in business, Mr. Young is politically minded; he is essentially a conciliator—an elucidator. Recognizing the dynamic character of economic life, he is sympathetic toward proposals for sound innovations.

"The world does not owe a man a living." Mr. Young said in an address to the Harvard Business School, "but business, if it is to fulfil its ideal, owes men an opportunity to earn a living."

Mr. Young has been taking his hat out of the political ring periodically since Senator Carter Glass suggested him as a likely Democratic candidate for the presidency as long ago as 1927.

Several years earlier, Mr. Young asked to be excused from running for mayor of New York.

"Gentlemen," he said, it is very kind of you to suggest my name, but there is one obstacle which prevents the entertaining of your proposition, and that is that I am not a voter in New York city. I was born on a farm in Herkimer county and that has always been my voting residence and I expect it will be as long as I live."

Mr. Young thrilled the economic emergency, it is understood, has leaned on the advice and co-operation of two Democrats not holding public office, namely, Mr. Young and Bernard M. Baruch.

At present, Mr. Young is hopeful that his committee of six bankers and six industrialists in New York can show the value of co-operation. He recognizes that business at present is pursuing an uncharted course, and that remedies are necessarily somewhat experimental. He, nevertheless, is actively in favor of seeking to apply the genius of management to the baffling problems of economic deadlock and attrition.

Bank of England Lowers Rate

London, June 30 (AP)—The Bank of England today reduced its discount rate from 2½ to 2 per cent. Rate was reduced May 12 from 3 to 2½ per cent. This was the second reduction in less than a month. The rate was lowered on April 21 from 3½ to 3 per cent.

The reduction from 3 to 2½ per cent was greeted with cheering on the stock exchange.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

"With this country in such an ugly mood," says a gloomy editorial, "who is there to lead us?" Mickey Mouse!

• • •

When you're feeling sad about the country having no leaders there's nothing cheers you up like remembering where the country has been led.

Our colleges turn out some wondrous messes.

THE NEWER PESSIMISM
(sermon)

"If the people of this country are ever going to live together happily, it will only be when the vast majority are doing what is right."—The Rev. Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, of Boston.

"But on the other hand," says the Rt. Rev. Wiley, "we've been pretty good at redistributing poverty."

And what's become of all the no-and-sos who kept telling us that prohibition was responsible for prosperity?

AND SO IT GOES
(News Items)

"Religion must adapt itself to present-day life. It cannot expect to carry on successfully in this motor age with horse and buggy methods," was the warning sounded by Rev. Beverly L. Ostrom at the annual meeting of the Southern California Congregational conference.

Report presented before an emergency meeting of the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church recommended as immediate investigation of the church's manager to order to cut down the overhead. An item singled out for special attack was a $100,000 expenditure by the publicity department.

Snappy quip, 1866—

"My pappy was a confederate But he always wore a union suit."

• • •

Says the Rev. Mr. Wiley—

"If you want to make a woman tolerant, just give her a hand mirror."

Los Angeles woman was fined for disturbing the peace because she made too much noise washing the dishes.

This is a surprise. Although most women make an unearthly noise about having to wash the dishes.

If You Must Talk, Do It Correctly

What's wrong with this posture when speaking in public?

In this day and age, when everybody is trying to talk at once, the wise man pays heed to the technique of eloquence.

What is more delightful than to have a perfect stranger come up, slap you on the back, and exclaim, "You certainly said a mouthful at the luncheon club today. Here—have a ten cent cigar!"

And what is more humiliating than to have someone interrupt your speech by yelling, "Hey, you, hold the torso erect. Relax the forearm. Swivel first on the right foot, then the left. Never protrude the stomach. Circumflex your inflections to give them full meaning!"

We will help you master the art of free speech. Our first lesson is "How and when to pause."

And now is as good a time as any.

Student Hear Teacher Sick

Surprise rumour
I heard today
How getting along
My respectly teacher
I'm so anxiously
How getting along you
Wish your! quickly well as possibly
I'm the pray you aye
God bless you teacher.

Announcer Still Hears About Himself

By N. F. T.

This Mr. McNamee goes his merry way despite having caught some pitiless panning since his Sharkey-Schmeling effort. Moreover, he has taken it on the proverbial chin like a champ. Bear in mind that McNamee chin is rather a costly one.

APPLIES QUICK WIT WITH SNAPPY BIT

Truss enough, there is no particular reason for praising Graham, unless it is to take issue with those who would be his grave diggers. We cannot help but observe admiringly how he reacts to recent loud "Bronx cheering" aimed his way. On Tuesday night, while holding forth with Ed Wynn, Mr. McNamee was told that more letters than ever came in following the program on which he (Mac) did not appear. Quick as a flash came a retort from Graham. "Yes, Chief, and I never had so many letter after any broadcast as I did that night, either." A breezy little laugh then trickled through to prove how he has a well-developed sense of humor. Thus he at least might be given due credit for the same, especially since it's a characteristic not found among many far less colorful "mike" men than Mr. McNamee.

Radio rahjahs are exhibiting letters aplenty from listeners tuned in aboard cruising boats as well as on extended motor tours. They say there is no summer slump on the receiving end this year.

Word comes about Kate Smith suffering from several square miles of severe sunburn. So she was came over the mountain—eh?

Interesting, informative and impressive is an article recently given wide circulation under a title, "The Regional Network" as written by Boston's Linus (WNAC) Travers.

OTHER OBSERVATIONS INCLUDE REVELATIONS

Another 10 per cent pay cut for NBC staffers...Floyd Gibbons has one holay-loiay welcome awaiting him when he arrives in Boston a week from Saturday...Very nifty —wedding like announcements by mail, invite guests to peek while "Snoop and Scoop" put on their premier program hereabouts next Tuesday (WEZ) at 8:45...An enthusiastic studio throng watched Col. Stoopnagle and Bud air their network nonsense last night (WNAC) between 8:45 and 9 o'clock...Two tune hits are due soon, so recognize them as "Still I Can't Believe It's True" and "If You Were Only Mine"...Latest of the gay Gotham "Gab-ulleros" to take money for broadcasting is young Sidney Skolsky. Those who tune WNAC tonight at 8:30 will hear his new Broadway Tintypes offering...One likable Lynn lancer, who won't affix his own John Hancock is back saying he who we know to be Ed Wynn is in reality Issy Edwin Leopold. On the Air

Elimination of 9-heading football games was a really a useful measure. The games never were b'dcast; it's always been a description of the game weather and the dresses the gals in the stands wear.

College officials feel that the football broadcasts have cut in on the gate receipts . . . Naw . . . Folks listen to b'dcasts only once. After that, if they want to know anything about a game, they go to it.

"Thompkins Corners" is going the way of all good things and exits at the stage. A tour of the East will be made in Aug., and to exhort you further to view the show, a cut of the receipts will be turned over to charity . . . After rumors floated around that Joe Rockwell, Jack Pearl, King Alfonso and the Duke of Kackiack would take Ed Wynn's air place, the Fool King fooled 'em all by saying he'll continue b'dcasting . . . Peggy Hopkins Joyce may be airing at you soon . . . Latest find of Ben Alpert, who can be found in Jack Washburn's dressing room between calls, playfully poking the wrestler around . . . Headlines about the marriage of Russ Columbo and Dola Negri ought to be breaking out real soon . . . If NBC plans don't materialize, Lou Conrad will be Boston bound soon.

Stray Thought No. 27: The three cent postage rate is going to make many artists' fan mail look like two cents.

What a whale of a mail difference one cent will make! Rolf Perkins says mebbe his friends'll save money if they send his fan letters second class mail as he gets very few first class letters anyway.

The Sun. WAAB Razor Highlights will bring the pitcher, Dazy Vance, of baseball broadcasting fame, to WAAB as baseball's best barytone, so let's hear him sing. Mr. Razor and Gary of the Ziggy hr. starts his subbing series for Mort Downey, WNAC at 7 tomorrow over . . . Alice Brady holds the unique distinction of being the only actress to admit publicly that she can't sing on the radio . . . NBC's Johnny Marvin is another unique admitter; he says he recalls the time not so long ago when he was so broke he sang on street corners for pennies . . . Sid Reinherz will be starred in a WNAC series to start in Aug. to be sponsored by a local dept. store . . . A radio battle royal is brewing in Providence, where both WJAR and WEAN are fighting to get increase in power. Most of the Yankee Network stations, by the way, are seeking power increases.

Learning to Act and Dance

These Russian Children Seem Intelligent

"THE DEATH OF THE DOLL"

The Russian Imperial Ballet and the school for teaching classical dancing continue in Russia as under the Czars, except that now it is the SOVIET Art School. If a Russian mother thinks her little daughter possesses qualifications for classical dancing, and if the daughter can pass the examination of the doctors and the ballet master, the child can have its chance. If, at the end of a year, she appears not quite good enough, she is advised to try something else. Only the best young pupils are kept studying.

This picture shows a scene in the Russian school for dancing. The children are rehearsing a dance and pantomime called "The Death of the Doll."

These children certainly look intelligent, and are, apparently, enjoying their future artistic possibilities.

But this interesting picture is clouded in the minds of all that believe in the existence of a supreme being by the fact that these children are brought up as atheists—taught that there is no God, that the world is a great machine.

However, such teachings never last. They have been tried many times and always fail because, as Voltaire said, cynically but sincerely: "If there had been no God, it would have been necessary to invent one."

These children are trained artistically, their intellects are not destroyed. They will believe as they choose when they grow older. And cold atheism will not be their choice.

There is no reason to doubt that the power of religion, which has asserted itself throughout humanity for a hundred centuries, will prevail in their case, as it has in so many others.

Meanwhile, this is an interesting picture, showing what Russia is doing to develop talent in its children. Also, it is well to remember that, whereas the Czars discouraged education among the lower classes, so that ninety per cent of all Russians were unable to read, the present Government of Russia is determined that every Russian shall read. Educated children are sent into country districts to teach illiterate old peasants how to read.

Vacation Rules

For Children and Others

With vacation season here, parents are advised to impress these simple safety rules on their children.

Neglect of them will mean fewer children when the holidays are over.

CITY

1—Cross streets at corners only; look BOTH ways before stepping beyond the curb.

2—Don't play games in the streets, and don't roller skate in them.

3—Ride bicycles close to the RIGHT side of the street, or, better yet, don't ride them in the street at all.

HIGHWAY

1—Walk on the LEFT side of roads. It is safest to FACE approaching vehicles.

2—Don't hitch hike and don't give rides to hitch hikers.

WOODS AND MOUNTAINS

1—Travel on MAIN trails. Otherwise, if you are a tenderfoot, you are sure to get lost.

2—Avoid touching unknown plants—they may be poisonous. Secure first aid treatment for cuts and scratches immediately.

3—Throw water on campfires and bury the ashes before you leave camp.

WATER

1—Remain seated in canoes or other small boats.

2—Study live-saving methods and learn how to apply artificial respiration.

3—Swim in safe water. Going too far off shore is not courageous—it's foolish.

4—Don't dive into shallow water, and don't go swimming immediately after eating.

These rules are for children, but like most rules for children they apply to grown-ups as well.

New York Day by Day

Fishing for Coin

NEW YORK, June 30—New Yorker, in their eternal hurry are said to drop $1,000 a day in small change and bills. Ragamuffins used to fish for coins through subway gratings with long sticks tipped with chewing gum. But today "grating fishing" is a diversion of the city's professional derelicts.

Down on the Bowery is a shop selling jointed rods with pull claws at the end for such salvage. Fertile fields, of course, are in congested areas—Grand Central, 14th st. and Brooklyn Bridge. There are many so expert they average around $2 a day.

Most of it goes for shots of that lethal hip potion known as "Bowery smoke?" Early Sunday the revenue is especially large, due to the fact that Saturday night revelers are often careless. The biggest haul is said to have been a wallet containing $600.

The finder confessed after spending it mellowing up in Bellevue after a two months' spree. I am told, too, that some of the dogs with tin cups on their backs are rented from an agency on Bleecker st. by beggars. Two exceptions are the pair of legless men moving along Broadway on portable platforms.

The dogs of some are rented for $2 a day plus a $25 deposit, forfeited if anything happens to the dogs. The same agency furnishes wheel chairs, crutches and other paraphernalia for fakers. There is a hotel near Canal st., called "The Roost," a rendezvous of street mendicants.

Only one place in town where one may be barber shaved after midday Sunday. This is the Turkish bath, and they do a brisk business among Saturday stay-outs.

In Christopher Morley's columning days he practised a minor deception in putting across some robust sentiment he thought too direct for personal utterance. In such exigencies he would ventilate the idea as a quotation from Emerson or Thoreau. Only once did any reader question the authority.

Most writers drag in a quotation by the heels now and then as an offhand after-thought. In instances the sole intent is a studied effort to create the effect of casualness. It is one of the writing tricks.

Speaking of writing, the lobby of the sedate Murray Hill becomes a meeting place of the literati one afternoon a week. The occasion is the weekly arrival of Thomas Costain, the Saturday Evening Post's bugle-man, who drops into town to rehearse things with the scribblers and artists.

He was with a curb group in front of Lindy's on Broadway—one of the high-tonsiled, pinch-backed boys arrayed in a suit of light tan, salmon pink shirt and a four-in-hand of bright green. Bugs Baer, passing, glanced at him with a start, went over and inspecting him closely, sighed happily: "I thought at first it was another bilious attack."

* * *

A favorite story of "Scamp" Montgomery, Dave's brother, concerned a search for a volunteer who would permit Annie Oakley to shoot an apple off his head in the circus arena. A black boy, napping in the sun, was awakened with the proposal and assurance Miss Oakley never missed. Backing away blinking and eyes bulging he mumbled: "Let Miss who shoot what apple off whose haid?"

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Share Yourself

YOU'RE LONELY.

Yes, you have friends. You go places and do things. You're "in circulation," but—

There's a part of you that isn't in circulation. There's a part of you that seems forever shut off, like a pool of dark, bitter water in a cavern, where light and sound never enter.

Elsie Robinson

There's a part of you that is like that—black, bitter, desolate. Your deepest grief is there; the memory of your cruelest failure and humiliation; hate, too, perhaps, and fear you won't confess.

People come and go through the rest of your life. You laugh, work, play with people, but they never enter that part of your life. They do not even know that it is there. You never tell them about it. And so—

You're lonely; heavy and haunted with the burden of that inner desolation; and you think it can't be cured.

But it can!

YOU CAN CURE YOURSELF IF YOU'LL SHARE YOURSELF.

Stop walling off part of your life from the rest of the world.

Open up ALL your life.

SHARE YOUR GRIEF.

There is nothing new or different about your grief, poor dear! Human tears, human heartbreaks have been the same since Eve first wept over her dead boy.

There is a grave in your life, and a grave in mine. Why should we be so bitterly proud about our graves? Why should we keep them apart, crouching beside them in our arrogant despair? Let us not make grief more terrible by this selfish solitude. Share your tears with me, my friend. Let me share mine with you.

Shame—the memory of failure. There is another thing you have hidden away in the secret darkness, isn't it? Stop it!

SHARE YOUR SHAME.

Stop being so snooty about your failures. You're not snooty? But you are, my friend. Can't you see that this refusal to reveal foolishness is the worst sort of snootiness? By doing so you imply that you aren't like all the other saps. You—Wonderful You—CAN'T fail.

Kick out of it, old dear! Everyone blunders. Everyone makes a fool of himself, sooner or later. You're no de luxe exception. Come clean! Fess up. Acknowledge you're an idiot like the rest of the cock-eyed human race. Be brave enough to be laughed at. Laugh at yourself. Share that laugh with the other fellow. And you'll be surprised to find what a relief it will be!

Resentment. There's the rest of that secret burden. Someone has hurt you; betrayed your trust; lied to you; and the memory of it has been poisoning you for years.

But it didn't happen just to you! Cruel things happen to everyone. So stop thinking you're the world's worst martyr.

SHARE YOUR RESENTMENT.

Then, suddenly, an amazing thing will happen. The minute you begin to share your resentment, the resentment will begin to shrink. It will no longer be an enormous, personal burden. It will be part of the common human experience—just the luck of the tail.

Lonely? Feel apart? Then stop feeling apart. Stop feeling snooty and different. Stop hoarding your personal mistrusts. SHARE THEM—AND THEY'LL SHRINK!

Just Folks

Lecturing the Fox Terrier

Wire-haired terrier, listen to me!
Don't worry the birds in the maple tree.
Though strong and swift on your feet you are
You can never compete with a motor car.
So stop this chasing them down the street
Or a terrible end you are sure to meet.

Tuffy, you smart little wire-haired fox,
You mustn't go roaming for blocks and blocks;
Stay close to the house when we let you out.
Here is plenty of room you can romp about;
And you mustn't expect all the guests who call
To spend their time with you playing ball.

Tuffy, the neighbors you mustn't annoy,
And you mustn't bark at the grocer's boy;
When at the table I take my seat,
Don't stand there and beg for a bit of meat,
For I've read all the books, and the experts say
That a well-trained dog shouldn't act that way.

But Tuffy looks back with his beady eyes
And seems to answer: "You may be wise,
You may know much that a man should do;
But the thoughts of a dog aren't known to you,
And a wire-haired terrier, young and glad,
Must do all those things which man thinks are bad."

Business Recognizes Economic Farce of Baneful Prohibition

By Julius G. Berens

Financial Editor New York American.

The average American business man has come to the conclusion that prohibition is an ECONOMIC FARCE.

He is astounded that a potential source of vast Governmental revenue is being neglected—especially in a time of unusual economic stress.

The American business man absolutely opposes a condition which allows untold millions of dollars' profit to law-breakers in a traffic which, under legitimate supervision, would LIGHTEN TAXPAYERS' BURDENS BY HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS!

The American business man will not tolerate continuation of a condition forcing him to carry the prohibition racketeer!

The business man's analysis of prohibition involves a sober insight into the figures and facts. He studies the problem as he would one in his own business.

The business man sees many millions of dollars poured into an unsuccessful effort to stem the tide of lawlessness.

He sees this money coming out of an already overburdened public pocketbook.

He recognizes, too, that that money has been WASTED, and that the waste is doubly irritable in a time of great economic privation.

The business man realizes that the tide of lawlessness inherent in prohibition overflows into legitimate business channels, with a staggering extraneous loss incidental to prohibition.

No one yet has been able to establish the extent of this extra loss, but its magnitude cannot be disputed; business men best of all classes of the population appreciates this angle of prohibition.

In dollars and cents the economic cost of prohibition experiment is colossal.

The business man wants the experiment written off to profit and loss, just as he would write off an unsuccessful experiment in his own business.

An outstanding industrialist leading the anti-prohibitionist struggle estimates that the United States, by following the British liquor taxation schedules, would have secured an addition to its income approximating $1,736,000,000 yearly over the past twelve years.

THIS WOULD HAVE BEEN SUFFICIENT TO RETIRE THE ENTIRE FEDERAL DEBT AND TO HAVE ACCUMULATED A SURPLUS ABOUT EQUAL TO THE FOREIGN WAR DEBTS TO US.

How mighty attractive to a business man in a period of vast Governmental deficits!

How does the business world view the latest swing in the tide of resentment against prohibition? Read what the American Bankers' Association Journal, organ of the banking community, states:

"Clarification of the prohibition controversy as, in effect, really a question of the 'repeal of bootlegging' ALSO DESERVES LISTING AMONG CONSTRUCTIVE BUSINESS FACTORS because of its promise ultimately to lead to a lessening of Government expenditure due to crime, to restore a fruitful and uncomplaining source of Government revenue, to eliminate a cause of social disorder and to put back into the hands of legitimate trade and industry the economic activities now conducted under illicit auspices."

The Lobster Test

No lobster with a defective nervous system is going to get by the fish officials of this state after this. The "Cardinal of the sea"—as a French poet called him—is put to a severe psychiatric test as soon as he comes out of the water. An electrical device is clapped to him. If he doesn't kick at the shock he is denied the rites of cookery and is hurled back into the deep.

This does appear a little too extreme. The lobster might be merely tired, or blase, or stubborn. He might, like the mule in the old story, not kick just because he doesn't give a darn.

Cooking is invariably fatal to lobsters. It frequently happens that persons who eat them don't feel so very well, either. What is really needed is a small portable device to test the digestive system of the prospective eater. Something handy that the waiter can apply to his neck. A patron with a robust gastric mechanism ought to react normally. The test may be a little bit rough, but it should obviate a few more sleepless nights this season.

Tokay Wine

Fine for Floors

First-class Tokay wine can be bought in Hungary for ten cents or less a pint, and in some districts an inferior grade is being used to scrub floors.

The reason is that tariff restrictions in Europe and prohibition in America make it impossible to export this famous product of the vineyards.

The wine-growing and beer-making countries of Europe are, with the exception of France, virtually bankrupt.

Most of them owe America money.

If restrictions here on the sale of light wines and beer were removed, these nations would immediately export beverages of excellent quality to us. They would also improve their financial position and might begin further payments on their debts.
